By Don Staruk

Poor attendance, lengthy presentations and repeated interruptions at last week's Town Meeting have some residents questioning if Andover's open town meeting form of government has outlasted its usefulness.

Monday night, 611 registered voters signed in to the first night of Town Meeting. Only 410 of Andover's 17,716 registered vot-

Life's lighter side: Working with magical island fairies

By Lisa Boudreau

One Andover woman's summer trip to Monhegan Island off the Maine coast and her fascination with a generations-old tradition there has resulted in a relatively new spring tradition in Andover.

Saturday, May 2, Fran McCormick and other local artisans and storytellers will hold the fourth annual Faerie Festival at Betsy Williams' The Proper Season, at 68 Park St.

Ms. McCormick, of 64 Bartlet St., an art teacher at Andover High School, visited the small island 10 miles off the coast of Maine four years ago after a friend told her about the fairy houses people build there.

"My friend used to take her son, and now she takes her grandson to Monhegan Island every summer to relax and build fairy houses," she said.

Andover runners did Boston

By Don Staruk and Perry Colmore Catlin

Brendan Sheehy was already tiring 12 miles into the Boston Marathon Monday when he saw his son, Brendan Sheehy Jr., cheering for him from the side of the road. Brendan Jr. must have realized his father was in trouble and that cheering wasn't what he needed, so he literally ran to the rescue, jumping into the race and accompanying his father for the last 14 miles.

"He said, 'I'll bring you home,'"

the elder Sheehy said Tuesday, and that's what he did.

Wearing a sweatshirt, dungarees and sneakers, and not even being a runner, Brendan Jr., a student at Andover High School, ran and walked the last 14 miles with his father, who finished the 26.2 miles in 5:00:55 (hours:minutes:seconds).

Mr. Sheehy, 43, of 19 Belknap Road, was thrilled with the whole race, his first marathon, especially the support of the fans and the idea of running the same course as the world-class athletes.

John Benson is ready for rehab

By Don Staruk

Burn victim John Benson continues to improve and could be moved to the Northeast Rehabilitation Hospital in Salem, N.H., as early as next week, according to Susan Benson, his mother.

"He's really doing well," Ms. Benson said last Friday. "He is walking. He walked with a walker yesterday, which means he was supporting his own weight."

Mr. Benson, 19, of 5 Lowell St., a 1991 AHS graduate, was burned on more than 88 percent of his body on Jan. 15 when his car went off Interstate 93 in Andover, went into the woods, flipped over and caught fire.

He's played some games, like chess, with family members, "and he has beaten me at chess," his mother said. "His spirits are low, which is understandable."

Her son is a little low because he is still in a lot of pain and because of the slow progress he is making. He also knows he has a lot of work ahead. But another burn victim told Mr. Benson that as soon as he can walk by himself, he'll snap out of it, Ms. Benson said.

Mr. Benson is out of danger, although he is still having trouble eating and still has a lot of skin operations and physical therapy coming.

"He still has some open wounds, but they're not worried about infection," his mother said.

His new skin was grown in a laboratory from pieces of his own good skin and grafted onto his body in several operations over the last few months. The skin is still very sensitive and blisters easily doing things most people do without even thinking about, his mother said.

Mr. Benson was a member of the swim team at Andover High School and manager of the baseball team. He also played tennis and was a skier before the accident, his mother said.

He could be moved from the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester to Northeast Rehab as soon as this Monday. He will need about three months of therapy before he can return home. He will also have to wear a pressure garment, a tight fitting bandage material that will keep his scars flat, for about a year.

A fund has been set up by West Parish Church members for the Benson family at Andover Bank.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Russ Cahalane

Recognizing dispatchers

By Don Staruk

President Bush last month proclaimed April 12-18, National Safety Communicators Week, a welcome recognition for local police and fire dispatchers, according to Russ Cahalane at the Andover Public Safety Center.

"For far too long, public safety communicators have gone without proper recognition. Their job is one the public seldom notices, but one that saves lives every day," Mr. Cahalane said. "This is where it all starts. The public doesn't know this."

"Public safety communicators are behind the scenes, doing their work competently and accurately. Without them, police officers, firefighters and emergency medical personnel would lack the high quality communications services which are necessary for the variety of public safety services which are vital to the well-being of communities."

Last year, Mr. Cahalane and Rich Boettcher, of the North Andover Police Department, were instrumental in having Gov. Weld sign a proclamation for a Massachusetts Public Safety Communicators Week. Mr. Cahalane has since formed the Public Safety Communicators Association for civilian dispatchers, which already has members from Amherst to Cape Cod.

Laura Wilson, a senior at Andover High School, accepts an award from Congressman Chester Atkins, D-Concord, last week, for founding the Andover High chapter of Junior Statesman of America two years ago. She and other AHS students have brought political issues to the school. She is the daughter of Kenneth and Karen Wilson, 84 Sunset Rock Road.

The purpose of the organization is to provide a networking of departments for assistance and support, voluntary training, more effective communication between centers, and to establish a dispatch standard, according to Mr. Cahalane.

"We share ideas," Mr. Cahalane said.

The PSCA has a bill pending in the legislature pertaining to the retirement status of communicators. Many of the association members also belong to the Associated Public Safety Communicators Association, a national organization for their profession.

Lt. Mooers case continued again

By Don Staruk

The alleged incest case of former Andover Police Lt. Donald Mooers Jr. was continued last week in Salem Superior Court to Thursday, May 7, for exchange of discovery materials.

Mr. Mooers' case had already been continued from March 10 to last Wednesday, April 15, when it was continued again. The most recent continuance was because David W. Duncan, assistant district attorney prosecuting the case, was tied up with another case.

Mr. Mooers, 51, of Haverhill and Hampton, N.H., was a 23-year veteran of the Andover police department when he abruptly retired on Dec. 17, one day before he was secretly indicted on six charges of incest. He is free on his personal recognizance.

AVIS sets races

All amateur river enthusiasts are invited to try their skills in the 21st annual set of Andover Village Improvement Society canoe and kayak races Saturday, May 2, from 9:30 a.m. to approximately 12:30 p.m.

Racers and cheering sections are asked to register at the Shawsheen River bludf by Horn Bridge, Dascomb Road.

Registration is free. Trophies and ribbons will be presented to the winners and some extra canoes will be available.

The three races are a downstream one-way beginners' event for all ages at 10 a.m.; an intermediate round-trip at 11 a.m.; and an open event at noon.

Family picnics are encouraged if the weather cooperates.

For further information, contact AVIS members Bob James (475-2895) or John Zeilin (475-8017).

Standing up for abused children in court

Volunteer program advocates in court for children who have been abused and/or neglected

Each day children in the Andover area, like all others, are removed from their homes because they are abused, neglected or abandoned by their families.

Unfortunately for these children, the tragedy doesn't end there. They must appear in court where a judge will determine their future. Should they be placed in foster care? Can they be reunited with their families? Or should they be put up for adoption? These are the decisions a judge must make. But often there is no one to speak up for the child. To say what is in his best interests. To make certain that he is placed in a permanent home as quickly as possible, not left to drift from foster home to foster home for months, even years.

Local residents, inspired by Judge Isaac Borenstein, also of Andover, have established a program they think will help these children whose only "crime" is that they were abused or neglected. Mary Wesson, John Ostrowski, John Peroni, Thomas P. Torrisi and Dr. Jerry Dugal were instrumental in founding the Greater Lawrence Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) program and serve on its board of directors. Judge Borenstein requested their assistance in establishing CASA because of his concern about the alarming increase in the number of children coming before the Lawrence District Court because of abuse and neglect.

Ms. Wesson, president of the board, has been helping troubled youths in Andover for years through a program called the alternative sentencing program, and as a veteran child advocate, she was concerned about these children. She believed that children who were removed from their homes for their own safety were being "victimized" a second time by the courts and child welfare system, which have too many cases to pay close attention to the needs of any one child.

But the CASA program trains volunteers who work with one case only. Each volunteer is trained to interview children, their parents, foster parents, teachers and social workers to find out what is best for the child. The volunteers learn about courtroom procedure, the social service system and the special needs of children who have been abused and neglected. A trained volunteer can then speak for a child in court, telling Judge Borenstein what he or she thinks is in the best interest of the child and what needs to be done so the child can be returned to his family or placed in a permanent home elsewhere.

According to Dr. Dugal, "The CASA concept has been proven to be very successful in other states. The program not only provides a critical service to victims of child abuse and neglect, but it is also cost effective because it relies exclusively on volunteers. And CASA brings the residents of a community together to address a community problem - child abuse."

According to Judge Borenstein, "Studies in other states where similar programs operate have shown that children with CASA volunteers have a better chance of living in safe, permanent homes than children who do not have a volunteer; CASAs can reduce the number of times a child is moved from foster home to foster home; CASAs can save tax dollars by reducing court and legal fees and reducing the cost of state-funded foster care."

"I don't like to think that there are children in this community who are so abused or neglected that they must be taken away from their parents. But it does happen and I'm thrilled to be a part of an organization which helps to ensure that these children are reunited with their families or find some other permanent home as soon as possible," said Mr. Ostrowski.

It takes about 10 hours a month to be a CASA volunteer. No special education or experience is required. To find out more about the program, contact the Greater Lawrence CASA program, 45 Franklin St., Room 107, Lawrence 01840, 685-0502.

Andover lawyer disbarred after admitting he misappropriated funds

By Lisa Boudreau

Andover Lawyer Laurence P. Melia, who had an office in Olde Andover Village on Main Street, has been disbarred after admitting he misappropriated funds from several clients.

According to state Supreme Judicial Court records, Mr. Melia, who lives at 40 Third Street, North Andover, submitted his resignation Jan. 2, admitted he misappropriated more than $100,000 of clients' funds, and was disbarred as of March 19.

According to court records, Mr. Melia acknowledged he misappropriated $90,401 held as trustee under a trust agreement, as well as an additional $8,500 held in escrow to pay a client's taxes. Only $5,000 had been repaid prior to a complaint filed to the Board of Bar Overseers. After the complaint was filed, Mr. Melia borrowed money from family members and repaid an additional $83,000. According to court records, the total amount had not been repaid as of March 19.

He also admitted he misappropriated $63,181 held in an informal conservatorship (without written agreement or court appointment) for an elderly client who lives in a nursing home. According to court records, this money had not been repaid as of March 19.

Mr. Melia also admitted he misappropriated $12,000 of estate funds held by him. According to court records, this money had not been repaid as of March 19.

He also admitted he misappropriated some or all of $63,423 of proceeds from a real estate sale. The sellers were repaid the total amount before the Board of Bar Overseers investigation. However, some of the money used to repay the $63,423 were funds taken from other clients' accounts.

Mr. Melia did not return calls from the Townsmen.

This shot of the new nursing home on Andover Street, Wingate at Andover, was taken last week.

Wingate nears completion

By Don Staruk

Wingate at Andover, the 123-bed nursing home being built on Andover Street across from the intersection with Dascomb Road, is near completion and should be open by midsummer.

"We hope it's July 1," Karen Carpenter, a vice president with Continental Healthcare, said last week.

Ms. Carpenter is accepting applications both for clients and employees at a temporary office for Wingate in North Andover. Wingate at Andover will hire locally and is already asking local colleges and schools for help.

"We're going to be hiring about 150 people," Ms. Carpenter said.

Wingate can only accept private-pay patients until it gets 20 patients, at which time the state can inspect the facility for Medicaid eligibility. Presuming it passes muster, Medicaid patients can then be accepted.

The facility will emphasize rehabilitation and extended nursing care, according to Ms. Carpenter. The company considered offering adult day care, but don't see the need for that service right now in the Merrimack Valley.

Wingate at Andover is operated by Continental Health Care, a subsidiary of Continental Wingate Co. Continental Healthcare is in the process of changing its name to Wingate Healthcare. Continental Healthcare operates a sister facility in Reading and another one in Wilbraham.

Continental will host a forum on health-care issues Wednesday, May 27, at Old Town Hall on Main Street. Financing long-term care and insurance options will be the main focus of the forum.

For those considering a nursing home, Ms. Carpenter can offer advice and literature on how to decide when nursing-home care is the best option, and which facility is the right one for the patient. One common mistake people make is not shopping around for health care, she said.

"The best thing to do is go visit some nursing homes," Ms. Carpenter said.

Elder Services of the Merrimack Valley and Family Service Association of Greater Lawrence, both in Lawrence, are two good sources of information for health-care information for seniors, according to Ms. Carpenter.

For more information about Wingate at Andover, call Ms. Carpenter at 470-3434, or visit the North Andover office at 203 Turnpike St. (Route 114), Suite 402.

Edna G. Thomas is a good citizen!

For the last 16 years, Andover resident Edna Grieco Thomas has provided selfless commitment and unwavering leadership to Lawrence General Hospital, where she serves as chairman of the board of trustees. Her community dedication, evident not only in her hospital efforts but also her leadership within other community organizations, has earned her the 1992 Ralph B. Wilkinson Good Citizenship Award.

Edna Grieco Thomas

The award is presented annually by the Greater Lawrence Chamber of Commerce to individuals who have significantly contributed to community welfare and betterment, exemplifying the spirit of Ralph B. Wilkinson, one of the most dedicated civic leaders in the Greater Lawrence area before his death in 1952.

In nominating Mrs. Thomas on behalf of the Lawrence General Hospital community, Joseph McManus explained that the Good Citizenship Award has been presented to many remarkable and talented individuals.

"Rarely, however, have we honored those who totally commit their lives to voluntary service in the community of their birth," he said.

Born in Lawrence, Mrs. Thomas has lived in the Greater Lawrence area all her life. A member of the family owning Grieco Brothers, a long established Lawrence clothing manufacturer, she played a pivotal role in establishing the first day-care program in the state for children of employees.

In her voluntary role as chairman of the Lawrence General Hospital Board of Trustees, Mrs. Thomas worked endless hours to assure continuation of the hospital and was instrumental in the hospital's dramatic financial turnaround. She has been the guiding force behind the hospital's annual fund-raising events, drawing record audiences the past two years by bringing Olympic talent and family-oriented entertainment to the Merrimack Valley. She worked with community businesses to offer these events to Lawrence school children through the Chamber's Adopt-A-School Program.

She has been a director of the Lawrence General Hospital Auxiliary for 10 years, serving two as chairwoman, and a trustee and chairwoman of the Lawrence General Regional Health System for six years.

With health-care services as a primary interest, Mrs. Thomas spearheaded the creation of VNA HomeCare, which provides a comprehensive array of home health care services to area residents. On the VNA board of directors since its inception, she currently serves as chairwoman, an office she has held for nine years.

Her other community activities include 19 years as a volunteer director and supporter of Pike School in Andover, seven years as a director of the Abbott Academy Association at Phillips Academy and past service chairman of the United Fund board of directors.

"Every one of the tens of thousands of hours she has given to Lawrence General, as well as her other community causes, has been totally voluntary," Mr. McManus noted. "To sustain that type of commitment to the health and welfare of the citizens of Greater Lawrence, never wavering in her enthusiasm and creativity, is an outstanding feat beyond words. Edna Grieco Thomas is a truly remarkable woman, a heroine and a role model for our youth."

Victor realtors attend conference

More than 250 brokers, managers and relocation directors, including, Bill and Bunny Maren of The Victor Company Inc. Realtors, attended the 1992 annual conference of Genesis Realty Network Inc. The four-day event, which was held at the Walt Disney World Swan March 25-28, is just one of the many ongoing educational meetings designed to keep Genesis Realty Network's members updated in the relocation industry.

The conference featured several nationally-known speakers who shared their expertise on various facets of the relocation industry.

The theme of this year's conference, Winning Through Independence, reflects on the network's belief that there's a significant role for a strong, major independent network of brokers to deliver quality home-finding and homesale services to individuals and corporate America.

Genesis Realty Network membership is comprised of real estate brokers across the nation providing service to relocating employees. Established in 1971, recent milestones include ranking more than 33 network members among the top 200 independent firms according to National Relocation and Real Estate and listing 34 firms among the nation's megabrokers according to Real Trends.

Headquartered in Mt. Laurel, N.H., Genesis Realty Network is comprised of nearly 280 firms and 26,000 associates in 1,100 offices, serving approximately 5,200 communities throughout the United States.

United Way of MV reinstates reduced U.S. dues

The United Way of Merrimack Valley executive committee voted recently to reinstate dues to United Way of America at a reduced level, according to David D. Hindle, chairman of the board.

Mr. Hindle said the executive committee voted unanimously to pay 50 percent of the local's dues payment until the end of the calendar year. At that time, the executive committee will consider paying 100 percent of the yearly dues after further assurances that the renewed effort at the national level is continuing.

Dues to the national organization are less than 1 percent of the campaign dollars raised, said Kenneth A. Gallant, president of the United Way of Merrimack Valley. He said 90 cents of every dollar raised in the valley is put back into the community through member-agency funding. The remaining 10 percent covers administrative costs, which includes the national dues.

The local United Way, which serves more than 220,000 people throughout the Merrimack Valley, voted March 2 to withhold dues pending results of an investigation into allegations concerning William Aramony, former president of United Way of America.

The results of the investigation, released to local United Ways April 3, stated that "within United Way of America, policy development, personnel decisions, program management, questions of organizational relationships and general day-to-day operations were handled with an unacceptable degree of informality and deference to the desires of its two principal officers."

Mr. Aramony resigned Feb. 27 amidst negative publicity concerning his compensation package and questionable management practices.

Kenneth W. Dam, interim president of United Way of America, stated in a letter to local United Way chief professional officers that the national trade association would "vigorously pursue all legal steps necessary to recover all money owed."

The local United Way suspended its method for coding and billing medical examinations.

"There is much confusion among physicians regarding the new coding and reimbursement requirements," Ms. Waxler says, "so I have developed a course that provides simple mechanisms for both picking the appropriate code and charting systems for making sure the chart documents the level of code the physician picks."

The Massachusetts Society of Eye Physicians will videotape the course and copies of the videotape will be made available through the society.

"Many physicians, especially those in practice for years, express frustration and anger that Medicare is 'changing the rules' so drastically. My goal is to teach the doctor and his/her staff to accommodate the changes without panicking and without making costly mistakes. Once the doctor and staff feel comfortable with the process, they can relax and concentrate on treating their patients," Ms. Waxler said.

Ms. Waxler is president of Practice Diagnostics, an Andover firm specializing in practice management consulting for physicians and dentists. With 15 years' experience in medical business management, she aids practices in lowering overhead and maximizing income, activities that have become crucial in the economic environment of medical practice in the '90s.

Your Dental HEALTH

NEVER TOO YOUNG

Parents should waste no time in attending to their infant's oral health needs. Beginning on the day that an infant arrives home, parents can use a wet washcloth to wipe the milky film from baby's gums after feeding. This practice will get baby used to the idea of tooth cleaning. As soon as the first tooth erupts, it is time for parents to brush the new arrival with a soft brush in gentle, circular motions over tooth and gums. Starting at age four or five, a young child can take over his or her own tooth cleaning chores, under a parent's supervision. As for flossing, parents can begin teaching children the techniques starting at age three. Children should get in the habit of flossing once a day and brushing after breakfast and dinner.

Prevention is the beginning of good dental health. Through good habits like proper brushing and flossing, you have a lot of control over your dental health. One of the most important services I offer is a plan for preventive dental care, starting at an early age. When your child first visits me at 296 Lowell Street, Rt. 133, with easy access off Rt. 93, bring a special doll or toy - I'll examine its teeth, too. Office hours are Mon & Thur 10-8, Tues & Fri 8-6, & by appointment (475-2431).

P.S. Children should be discouraged from swallowing toothpaste, a habit which can add excess amounts of fluoride to their systems.

The Andover Marriott hotel celebrated its fifth anniversary with a birthday party last week for 40 5-year-old children from the Greater Lawrence Community Action Council's Childcare Center. The Marriott presented $5 to the childcare center for every child attending the party, a state-funded facility for underprivileged children. The $200 will be used to purchase cribs, blankets and toys for the center's new infant and toddler program, scheduled to open in July. ## United Way reinstates partial U.S. dues

(Continued from page 9) dues until the following four assurances were met: that there has been no misappropriation of United Way of America Funds; no diversion of United Way of America funds for personal benefit; accurate record-keeping and installation of appropriate administrative and fiscal controls be implemented; and a full report of the investigation be made available to the local United Way before any further action is taken.

Mr. Hindle said the executive committee was encouraged by the frankness of the report, but allegations of misappropriation and diversion of funds remain unanswered.

"While there appear to have been significant improprieties," Mr. Hindle said, "interim President Kenneth Dam has taken steps to correct the existing problem and restitution is being sought by United Way of America. It's unfortunate the actions of a few have so damaged a worthwhile and needed organization."

Patriot missile tests well

Raytheon Company has announced that the newly developed Patriot PAC-3 Multimode missile underwent a successful flight test on April 11 at the White Sands, N.M., missile range.

The completion of this first successful flight test elevates the Patriot missile system to a new performance level against advanced missile and aircraft threats, according to company officials.

A Patriot fire unit with a tactically integrated Multimode missile successfully engaged an unaugmented Beech Aircraft MQM-107D subscale drone. The target was detected and placed under track at sufficient range to intercept at 30 kilometers down-range at medium altitude.

At engagement, the Multimode missile was launched and successfully transitioned through the normal Patriot guidance modes. In the terminal mode, C-band track via missile semi-active and K-band active guidance operations were exercised, with intercept occurring under control of the active guidance mode. The active seeker's integrated fuse initiated the warhead and destroyed the target.

The new Multimode seeker gives Patriot higher firepower, improved performance against advanced aircraft and cruise missile targets, and expanded defended area coverage and higher altitude intercepts against tactical ballistic missiles.

William H. Swanson, Raytheon senior vice president and general manager of the Missile Systems Division, said, "This successful test of the Patriot Multimode missile is a major milestone in the Patriot growth program. It is an important building block in the U.S. Army's program to continue to make Patriot 'all it can be' and expand its anti-tactical missile capabilities."

The Multimode seeker program, one of a number of proposed Patriot upgrades, is being accomplished under a Memorandum of Understanding between the U.S. and Germany for extended air defense.

Bertucci's hopes to open here

Mr. Crugnale hopes his organization will open a "new concept" pizzeria at 90 Main St., the former Brigham's location. The takeout and delivery store will be called Bertucci Menucci and will have just four or five tables for customers to sit down and eat.

"Menucci doesn't mean anything," said Mr. Crugnale. "It just rhymes with Bertucci's and we thought it sounded good."

Mr. Crugnale said the takeout business in the North Andover Bertucci's has been so busy it is making the restaurant service more difficult. The main goal of opening the Andover satellite is to take some of the North Andover takeout traffic, he said.

"We are going to design the new store to look like an old Italian bakery. It's going to be real nice," said Mr. Crugnale, who oversees 21 other Bertucci's in the state and two each in New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

On Thursday, May 7, the town's Zoning Board of Appeals will deliberate on a request by John and Charles Davidson, the owners of 90 Main St., to modify the building's permit to allow a restaurant permit to be attached to the building. As it is now, each renter in the space has to apply to the town for its own permit.

According to officials in the building department, a decision most likely will not be made until one month after the May 7 ZBA deliberation.

Taylor Rental receives award

The Taylor Rental Center at 201 N. Main St. has been named to Taylor Rental Corporation's President's Club. The award, which was announced at the corporation's recent 18th national convention in Palm Springs, Calif., recognizes the local store's outstanding business performance during 1991.

Owned by John Paiva, the Taylor Rental joins a club of highest achieving Taylor Rental Centers throughout the nation.

Richard A. Dandurand, president and general manager of Taylor Rental Corporation, said,

"We set out this past year to win in tough times and many Taylor teams really pulled this off despite the recession. I know we're capable of a breakthrough year in '92 because of the determination like these winning teams."

The theme of this year's convention, "Breakthrough '92," unveiled new corporate programs and revenue opportunities for Taylor Rental Centers to take advantage of further strengthening their business potential nationwide.

SCHOOLS

Experimenting at St. A.'s

Mr. Wizard pays a visit

Parents might remember Mr. Wizard from his NBC television show, Watch Mr. Wizard, or their children from his new series, Mr. Wizard's World, on Nickelodeon cable TV. As part of a new program developed by Don Hebert, the original Mr. Wizard, students throughout the country are able to see many of the experiments he performs on the show in their own schools. Since Mr. Wizard can't come to every school, he has assistants like Mike Blashill, who visited St. Augustine's School recently.

St. Augustine students were on the edge of their seats when Mr. Blashill performed experiments showing everyday energy in action. With the help of gunpowder, hairdryers, matches and electricity, he showed many ways to save energy.

A highlight of the show was a demonstration on insulation. A student volunteer melted a quarter on Mr. Wizard's hand with a blow torch. His hand was unharmed because of the 3 inches of insulation he held.

The show ended with a bang as Mr. Wizard demonstrated how to harness gunpowder's energy. He launched a paint can 8 feet into the air.

Students have bright ideas

Students at St. Augustine's have been thinking about all the gadgets that make life easier and more fun — and inventing some of their own.

These fifth-grade inventors have ideas that range from a ski pole holder to a wasteless squeeze container to a beach towel with a built-in pillow.

One of the young innovators, Jason Williams of North Andover, who loves to ski, worried that he'd drop my poles on his way up the ski lift.

Jason came up with the idea of attaching a receptacle to the end of the ski to hold the poles. Jason and his dad tested the product, and it was a success.

His fellow outdoorsman Nathan Pelletier got his idea, not at the slopes, but on the beach. He would take off his shirt at the beach and try to relax, but his shirt would always get sandy and it was difficult to get comfortable.

Storing money was also a problem because bathing suits don't have pockets. Nathan's solution? The Tote 'n Towel.

Resident studies in Mongolia

Kathleen P. Pakos of 2 Heritage Lane, a senior at Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine, has been selected from a group of 189 finalists to receive a $13,000 Thomas J. Watson Foundation fellowship grant for a year of independent study and travel.

Ms. Pakos will examine the system of midwifery in Mongolia. Last summer, she met with Dr. Gendengin Purezsuren, a Mongolian obstetrician/gynecologist studying health-care methods in the United States.

She will work with Dr. Purezsuren, who is trying to bring modern medical techniques to Mongolia.

"It will be interesting to see the centuries-old system of midwifery at work as well as to see how modern techniques more suited for Western cultures take hold in Mongolia," said Ms. Pakos.

The sociology major has a minor in biology and is a dean's list student. She has also been honored as a James Bowdoin Scholar in recognition of academic excellence. She transferred to Bowdoin from Mount Holyoke College in January 1990 as a second-semester sophomore.

Ms. Pakos is the resident assistant for the Wellness House, a college residence house that stresses overall health and nutrition.

She has been a co-chairwoman of the Bowdoin Active in Community Service program and co-chair and chair of the Bowdoin Senior Citizen Program.

The Thomas J. Watson Foundation was founded in 1961 as a charitable trust by Mrs. Thomas J. Watson Sr. in honor of her late husband, the founder of International Business Machines Corp. The fellowship program was begun in 1968 by their children.

Grants totaling more than $915,000 were made to 70 graduating seniors out of 189 finalists nominated from 53 small liberal arts colleges and universities throughout the United States.

Watson Fellowships grants support a year of independent study and experience in a field in which the fellow has demonstrated particular interest and potential for leadership.

The foundation views the opportunity for such travel and reflection as a break from formal education, a time to explore a deep interest, test their aspirations and abilities, and view their lives and American society from a new perspective, according to Mary E. Brooner, executive director of the Watson Foundation.

Since the start of the program, 1,668 fellowship awards have been made. Ms. Pakos is the 40th Bowdoin student to receive a Watson Fellowship.

Professionals talk about their careers at AHS

Preparations for Career Day, sponsored by the Parent Advisory Council at Andover High School, are in full swing.

Next week, all the high school students will be given an opportunity to explore different careers.

The students will listen to speakers from a variety of occupations.

Approximately 85 speakers – including an accountant, banker, mortgage broker, laser specialist, hair stylist, elementary school principal, interior designer, speech therapist, chef, auto mechanic, TV producer, fitness club owner, artist/illustrator, plumber, newspaper photographer, judge, stock broker and state senator – will discuss their professions and answer students' questions. Career Day will be held Thursday, April 30.

Students and staff will be given the opportunity to visit with speakers, many of them from Andover, to share information about their professions, said members of the high school's PAC, which is organizing the day to help kids think about their future careers.

Plan now for summer ideas

Andover High School's Parent Advisory Council offers this tip of the month: All sorts of summer experiences are available in the school's career center. Some of them include school, camp, work and volunteer opportunities. The PAC advises students to get a head start on their summer plans.

Small inventors have big ideas

Picture a beach towel. Permanently attached on the top is a pouch to put a shirt in to make a comfortable pillow. On the bottom corner is a removable wrist pouch for storing money.

Justin LeCam of Andover was frustrated by the way his family stood ketchup bottles upside down so they would pour easier. Often bottles would fall over, spill and not be ready to use. So Justin came up with the Wasteless, Messless Squeezable Container.

His idea was to insert an outlet into the side of the squeeze bottle on the bottom. The user can empty the contents of the container without tipping the bottle upside down and waiting for the contents to settle near the opening.

All three boys tied for first place in St. Augustine's inventors competition. Justin and Nathan were entered into the National Inventive Thinking Contest, sponsored by the Weekly Reader, a teacher's guide for education based in Middletown, Conn. Justin has submitted his idea to Hunts.

School launches 1,000 rubber ducks

St. Augustine School's river duck race is Sunday, May 17. The school will launch 1,000 to 1,500 yellow rubber duckies into the Shawheen River. They will float about two miles downstream to the finish line, located across the stretch of the river that runs through St. Augustine property on Lupine Road.

All the ducks will be numbered to correspond to adoption papers. They will be accompanied by a canoe patrol to make sure no little duck goes astray. The judges will be at the finish line to scoop up the first three ducks to cross. First prize is $500; second, $250; and third, $100.

College offers computer camp

Students clean up the river

A group of 15 Andover High School teen-agers, in conjunction with Andover's Earth Day cleanup, spent the day canoeing the recesses of the Shawsheen River. The Shawsheen River flows through the center of Andover.

The five-mile trek from Tewksbury to Ballardvale's Mill Pond was in great need of cleaning. Several rimmed tires, a plastic sled, several barrels, discarded car parts, and 16 bags of trash were retrieved from the river.

These Andover High freshmen and sophomores say that whoever relates to the river will be affected. Fishermen, canoers and landowners along the river, or simply someone walking by on a bridge, deserve to see a clean river, said sophomore Sean Donohue, who organized the cleanup for Earth Day as a requirement for the completion of his Eagle Scout badge.

The Shawsheen empties into the Merrimack River and this in turn will help the cleanup of the Merrimack into the Atlantic, according to Sean.

The member of Troop 74 of Andover is the son of Fran and Carole-Jean Donohue. He was among two freshmen and 13 sophomores who worked as a team.

AHS trial team finishes season

Andover High School's Mock Trial Team recently completed another successful season in the Massachusetts Bar Association's mock trial competition. Andover had victories against Hamilton-Wenham and last year's state semifinalist, Lynn Classical.

Student teams compete against other schools from their regions. Each team tries the same hypothetical case, a negligence action in which a man alleges that his child incurred severe permanent injury because day-care workers failed to report evidence of child abuse.

Team members are Christine Anderson, Terry Klein, Prabhu Rajappa, Laura Wilson, Kate Parker, Evan Koch, Ted Friedenson, Lisa Lucas, Cecile Lim, Keith Ducey, Robin LaPointe, Tara DeMarco, Natalie Jordan and

J.P. McNeil. They are coached by social studies teacher William I. Hart. Attorney coaches are James Krasnook and Debra Silberstein.

Scholarships fall from sky

A helicopter will fly over the Andover High School football field Friday, May 1, at 2:30 p.m. to drop five rubber koosh balls. The idea is the National Honor Society's, to raise money for its annual scholarship fund.

A $5 ticket claims a specific portion of the field. If the koosh lands on a person's portion, he/she wins 3 percent of the total funds collected. Tickets will be sold at Papa Gino's and Andover Bank Saturday.

Preschoolers' vision screening starts Tuesday

Amblyopia screening will be conducted by the Andover Society. This part of the Andover public schools' screening of preschoolers has been done by society members since 1967.

All children between the ages of 3 and 6 should be screened for amblyopia, more commonly referred to as "lazy eye." Screening for prekindergarten children will be held in the Memorial Hall Library children's room April 28 and 29, May 4, 5, 6, 11 and 12.

Screening will be conducted from 10:30 a.m. to noon and 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. Vision screening for 3- and 4-year-olds and rescreening will be held at the library during the same hours May 27 and 28. Amblyopia, which affects 5 percent of the population, is characterized by the reduced or dimmed vision in one or both eyes and is often caused by muscle imbalance in the eyes. If the condition is not detected before the child is 6 or 7, it becomes permanent.

Kindergarten classes have openings for next year

Andover's morning and afternoon prekindergarten classes will have openings for the 1992-'93 school year. The Shawsheen Preschool offers a two-and-a-half-hour four-morning session for 3- and 4-year-olds and a similar afternoon session for 4- and 5-year olds. Class size is limited to 15.

The preschool is a language-based model that encourages parent involvement. For more information, contact Shawsheen School at 470-1700, Ext. 201.

Pediatrician talks about memory

Dr. Mel Levine, a noted specialist in the field of child development, will present a workshop in Andover Thursday, April 30.

Called "Remembering to Understand and Understanding to Remember: The Variations and Dysfunctions of Memory among Our Students," the workshop will be at the Pike School and is open to the public.

Dr. Levine is a professor of pediatrics and director of the Clinical Center for the Study of Development and Learning at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine. Before that he served for 14 years as chief of the division of ambulatory pediatrics at the Children's Hospital in Boston.

While at the Children's Hospital, he was also an associate professor of pediatrics at Harvard Medical School. His major research interests are focused on the health and development of school-age children.

Dr. Levine has written many books and articles about his research in the field of learning disabilities and the neurological development of children. He is currently conducting a project that will help junior high school teachers deal with children having academic difficulties.

Participants must register in advance by calling the Pike School at 475-1197. A $15 fee includes the day-long workshop and lunch.

Picturing Andover's bleak future

Dear Marielle,

You're never going to believe this. I just now got the fax from my parents: The government has decided to evacuate my hometown, Andover. They want to turn it into a Super Waste Disposal Center, as they call it, or in other words, a gigantic garbage dump.

Dear, sweet Andover. I never thought it would come to the same dreadful fate that North Reading did. As if that weren't bad enough, I received the fax in my dorm while I was reading an article about the last square mile of rainforest and the eighth hole in our ozone.

Next week, I'm going to fly back home. I'd like to take one last look and say goodbye to my beloved hometown.

I'll be there to watch the implosion of the Super Barnard Building. I'm sure I must have written you about that. Remember? In 1995, they transformed our Barnard Building into a skyscraper as tall as the Empire State Building was before it burned down.

After I write this letter to you, I'm going to copy down some of the highlights of my life growing up in Andover. Maybe you'd like to know some, too. We moved to Andover in 1978, six weeks after I was born.

Liz Clinkenbeard

In 1981, right before my third birthday, we moved into the house that my parents still live in. In 1990, I completed elementary school at South and became pen pals with you, Marielle. Then, in 1993, I was accepted into Phillips Academy, finished junior high at Doherty, and later in the year, began high school. I left Andover my junior year to visit you in France as a foreign-exchange student.

When I think of how much I missed home then, I wonder what I'm going to do now. The day I graduated high school, I realized that after college, although I had always thought I would travel or move somewhere exotic, what I really wanted was to return to Andover. Ever since I was accepted here at C.O.I.S. (College of International Scholars) in Washington, D.C., I have been looking forward to my return. Now my whole dream is ruined, and it's ruined because man doesn't know how to take care of his own environment. Instead of visiting the house where I used to sit and write poetry, or going back through the halls of the school where I met all my best friends, or taking my children for a walk down the very streets where I used to ride my bike, all that I have to look back on is one little diary I kept as a child.

I can remember having my third birthday party in our new house and I remember learning how to dive in our pool. I remember the first time I voted; it was for President Susan Johnston.

Just think, if only people had taken some action back in the '90s maybe there wouldn't be so much trash and excess garbage. Maybe Andover, a town full of so many memories wouldn't have to be literally wasted away.

Your friend always,
Liz Clinkenbeard

Liz Clinkenbeard, daughter of Joel and Jeannette Clinkenbeard of 13 Enfield Drive and a seventh-grader at Doherty Middle School, won second prize in the grades 6-8 category of the "Andover in the Year 2000" essay contest.

Bullfighter visits Bancroft

Flanked by new flags hanging high from the rafters, Timothy Mahin deftly performed the twists and turns of a matador swirling his red cape.

The Bancroft Elementary School cafeteria was transformed into an arena April 9 for the visits of a Spanish bullfighter and Chinese martial artists. Bancroft fourth-graders were relaxing on a break from their day-long International Fair.

Mr. Mahin told them how he first became interested in bullfighting at the age of 14 when he lived in Spain. He demonstrated each stage of the bullfight.

He said that the symbolism of the fight between el matador and el torro is important to Spanish culture. According to Mr. Mahin, "...man faces death and overcomes his fear of it."

Split infinitives, frazzled nerves

A grammar and usage workshop will be sponsored by the Andover/North Andover YMCA Tuesday and Thursday, May 5 and 7.

The workshop is for people interested in communicating clearly and concisely, using English with skill and common sense and presenting ideas with impact, according to instructor Bernice Randall, a longtime faculty member of Stanford University's professional publishing course.

Ms. Randall said the compact "refresher course" reviews the basic rules for writing and speaking the English language. By sharing experiences and doing group exercises, participants will learn when it's proper to split an infinitive; whether "data" takes a singular or plural verb; why "between you and I" raises eyebrows; and how to deal with other troublesome aspects of the rapidly changing language.

Ms. Randall is also managing editor at Robert Ventre Associates. She is the author of Webster's New World Guide to Current American Usage and When is a Pig a Hog?

In a second new workshop, Positive Ways of Dealing with Negative Behavior, participants will discuss the goals in operation when children misbehave. Practical strategies for dealing with misbehavior will be suggested.

With positive approaches to discipline, negative behavior can be redirected, and responsibility for appropriate behavior can be placed on the child, said instructor Lynne Laffie, who teaches English at Newburyport High School.

Registration is being accepted for this course, which meets Thursday, May 14, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Y.

Fees are $15 for full-privilege members, $17 for basic members and $19 for non-members.

Brooks in concert

Bancroft fourth-graders enjoy an international fair

Mr. Mahin had participated in events in Spain and Mexico.

He had written articles on the sport for The New York Times and Sports Illustrated. The writer from New York came at the request of his niece, Margaret Adams, a Bancroft fourth-grader.

The Bancroft arena turned to the Far East next as Sifu (meaning "teacher") Alex Kiesel, chief instructor at Yang's Martial Arts in Andover, explained the origins of Chinese kung fu and tai chi. Elsie Wu, a third-year student of Mr. Kiesel's and fourth-grade teacher at Bancroft, demonstrated the long form of Yang style tai chi, a slow and meditative martial art widely practiced in China. Mrs. Wu emphasized that the health benefits gained included increased flexibility, better stress management and overall well-being. Fighting-speed kung fu was demonstrated by Andover High School freshman Chris Muelen and Cheryl Crawford and Al Jean, instructors at the school.

The International Fair was the culmination of two months of preparation. Once countries were chosen, students wrote to embassies, began research reports, decorated flags, drew maps, designed stamps and post cards, interviewed friends and relatives, gathered display items and created costumes. From 9 to 11:30 a.m. that day, they remained in native dress behind their displays.

Other classes meandered through the fourth loft, which took on the flavor of an international marketplace where 41 countries were represented. An array of items representing all aspects of culture was presented stall after stall. Students crafted items that included Hillary Fitzpatrick's beach front of Ocho Rio, Jamaica; James Noonan's Ireland molded out of green Jell-O; Katie Casey's Mount Ararat in Turkey with Noah's Ark stranded upon it; Sarah Cote's golden Tutankhamen mask; Joshua Cote's sugar-cubed pyramid; Andrew Fitzgerald's pyramids of sand glued to cardboard; Dan Borowiecki's clay pyramid showing meticulously laid blocks and sculpted desert sands; and Elsa Malmberg's paper replica of the Opera House in Sydney, Australia.

At noon the fourth-graders lined up for seconds and thirds at an international buffet that included dishes they helped prepare at home. Those same recipes were compiled into a cookbook and made available to them for future reference and as a keepsake. "The help of parents in organizing the buffet and compiling the cookbook was invaluable," said Liz Cahoon, a fourth-grade loft teacher.

The fair continued Thursday evening while the Bancroft Parent-Teacher Organization held its annual ice cream social. Nearly 1,000 servings were scooped, and almost as many people made their way through the fair. Doug Buchanan, also a fourth loft teacher, and other students sported T-shirts with the fair's adopted logo. Jennifer Wu, Mrs. Wu's 19-year-old daughter, incorporated elements from flags around the world into a graphic design that read "International Fair."

"The students have poured a tremendous amount of time and effort into this day's events," said Lynne Vaughan, the fourth member of the teaching team.

"Doing the report was the hardest part," said student Andy Gilmore.

Anticipation the night before was like "waiting for Christmas," according to Kathleen Bader, with Mrs. Lal Robinson. On May 7 four hands-on workshops will be presented by the Chinese Song with Christina Zhu Cultural Assoc.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

SUPPORTIVE ADVICE

Considering that the average person spends approximately 25 years in bed over a lifetime, he or she should select a mattress that preserves the slight S-curve of the spine. This is to say that the spine should assume nearly the same position lying down as when standing upright. In a study designed to discover which mattress did the best job of supporting the back, researchers had patients with low back pain sleep on four different mattresses, each over a two-week period. At the end of the two-month study, it was found that patients scored better on physical tests when they slept on a 720-spring mattress, as opposed to a 500-spring mattress, a bladder-type waterbed, or a hybrid water/foam mattress. Waterbeds came in second in the study.

If your body aches when you wake up maybe you need a new or different mattress. Consult your chiropractor to see what you can do to relieve this problem at DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. We not only restore your health but help to build it too. Our office is located at 15 Central Street.

P.S. Weakness or loss of reflexes in a pained leg may help confirm the diagnosis of a herniated disc.

New group seeks logo design

The Andover Fund for Education, a new organization dedicated to enriching and supporting Andover's public schools, is sponsoring a logo contest.

Designs should symbolize the newly created organization's goals of supporting excellence in the schools and community involvement, organizers said.

The color logo design should measure 4 by 2 inches or proportional to these dimensions.

It should work well in large as well as small formats.

The deadline is Friday, May 22, and the logo should be mailed, together with the designer's name and address, to: Logo Contest, AFE Inc., P.O. Box 5081, Andover, Mass. 01810.

The Andover Fund for Education meets on the first Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the School Committee meeting room.

Dartmouth Club meets

The Dartmouth Women's Club of Boston will meet Wednesday, April 29, at the Wayside Inn in Sudbury.

The club was organized in 1930 to further loyalty to and support for Dartmouth College. This year's board of directors includes President Sandra Bertetti of Andover and Assistant Treasurer Frances Luca of Reading, who is active with Andover's Senior Center.

During the past 61 years, the club's scholarship fund has helped many Dartmouth students afford a college education.

How to pay for college degree

By Sen. Patricia McGovern

Now that most college applications are complete and acceptances received, it's time for parents and college-bound students to begin the search for financial aid and scholarship money.

The first step for any student is to complete the 1992-'93 Massachusetts Financial Aid Form. Locally, this form is available through high school guidance offices, college financial aid offices and the Haverhill Higher Education Center, located at 25 Locust St., Haverhill. The MFAF may also be obtained at the Higher Education Information Center's main office at Boston Public Library, 666 Boylston St.

In addition, brochures describing various financial aid sources for Massachusetts residents are available free of charge from the Higher Education Information Center on request by calling (800) 442-1171.

After completing the MFAF, students should contact the financial aid offices at all the schools they are considering. To be on the safe side, students and their parents should review all financial aid deadlines and follow up on all submitted forms after a reasonable amount of time has passed.

Once that's filled out, I would encourage students to embark on a scholarship search. The Higher Education Information Center suggests asking family and friends first if they know of any scholarships for which you might be eligible. Employers, community groups, churches, local businesses and alumni organizations are good places to start.

The local Chamber of Commerce is also a good contact. Local businesses frequently offer scholarships to local students who plan to enter specific career fields.

Another excellent source would be your guidance counselor or educational agencies.

We Found A Hole In The Vinyl Window Story

Notice Anything Missing?

The interiors of many vinyl and aluminum window frames are hollow, allowing air to circulate and waste energy. But Owens-Corning's exclusive fiberglass window frames are built from the insulation out.

Airtight and watertight, fiberglass frames continue to insulate through years of harsh weather conditions. Owens-Corning windows have the energy-efficient advantage.

'Snack' isn't a four-letter word

Snacks are as important to a child's diet as regular balanced meals and deserve the same consideration that meal planning does.

That's according to Dr. Susan Baker, co-director of the pediatric gastroenterology and nutrition service at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester.

"When children are in school, they have very structured schedules which don't allow them to eat as often as they need to," says Dr. Baker.

She says flexibility and moderation are two positive ways to develop good eating habits.

"It's fine to let children eat junk food once in a while, but don't send them to school with sweets every day," she said.

Food should never be used as a reward or punishment.

Fidelio Society gives spring performance

The Phillips Academy music department will present a program called "Spring Concert at the Addison" Wednesday, April 29, at 7 p.m. at the Addison Gallery of American Art.

The Fidelio Society, under the direction of Susan Lloyd, will perform music of Weelkes and Gesualdo, and drinking and smoking songs of France and England. The Fidelio Society is the oldest organization on Andover Hill having been founded at Abbot Academy by Samuel Morse Downs in 1887. A handful of students are admitted each year by audition.

Students in Fidelio Society are Brianna Breen of San Salvador; Valeria Candelini of Bologna, Italy; David McCallum and Aaron Russo of Andover; Aaryn Post of Brookline; Sarah Jacoby of Marblehead; Alana Petraske of New York City; Cynthia Miller of North Reading; Daniel Roehl of Palm City, Fla.; Theodore Sterling of Bel Air, Md.; Paul Choi of Farmington, Conn.; Rachel Siegel of North Egremont; and Miguel Villoro of Mexico City, Mexico.

A concert especially for kids, see page 24.

Ms. Lloyd, director of the Fidelio Society since 1975, is a history teacher at Phillips. A teacher at Abbot Academy from 1968 to 1975, she has written histories titled A Singular School: Abbot Academy 1828-1973 and The Putney School: Progressive Experiment. Ms. Lloyd is an accomplished violin, singer and choral conductor.

The recital is free.

Barbara Bourgeois, Juree James and Jude Jennings rehearse Haiku, one of three one-act plays the Andover Theatre Company is opening tomorrow.

ATC one-acts open tomorrow

If the short story is the most difficult fiction to write, then the one-act play is the most difficult drama. The ability to tell an entire story in a matter of minutes is an exacting talent.

But the Andover Theatre Company is undaunted as it presents a trio of one-acts called "The Wrights of Spring": Harvey Fierstein's On Tidy Endings, William Inge's People in the Wind and Katherine Snodgrass' Haiku.

The plays take the stage April 24 and 25, May 1 and 2 at Old Town Hall on Main Street. They start at 8 p.m.

In On Tidy Endings, Mr. Fierstein's biting commentary is aptly executed by Scott Hulse's performance as Arthur. Arthur must come to grips with the loss of the man he loves to AIDS while dealing with the dead man's family.

Mr. Hulse has been with Andover Theatre since 1980, but is noted for his professional appearances with the Boston Opera Company under Sarah Caldwell and as a soloist with classical music groups throughout the region.

Marcelle Gregg directs Mr. Hulse and Janet Alberich, who plays the dead man's former wife.

Haiku has a cast of three, including one of Ms. Snodgrass' most challenging roles, Louise. Juree James of Andover has very few words in this role but has conducted extensive research to perfect her characterization of an autistic adult. Realistic movements, speech patterns and "attitude" to surroundings have been captured by Ms. Juree through reading and watching films such as Rain Man.

Barbara Bourgeois of Andover and Jude Jennings of Methuen play Louise's mother and sister, respectively. They and director Pam Le Mieux also participated in the research.

People in the Wind is a slice of life from a bus rest stop in Kansas. Eight characters are orchestrated by director Ryan Woosley in the shortest of the plays.

On the surface nothing happens, but the chance meeting of characters hints at a profound impact.

Still, only the audience senses the true crossroads for "The Girl" (Karen Deffenbach of Andover) and "The Man" (Mark Perrault of Lawrence). Mr. Perrault is an ATC veteran as well as a stand-up comedian. This is Ms. Deffenbach's first performance with the group.

Tickets are $8 for adults, $5 for seniors and students.

PA celebrates cultures

Phillips Academy will hold its first cultural evening co-sponsored by the Indian/Pakistani Society and Muslim Student Union Saturday, April 25.

Sherifa Zuhur will lecture at 6:45 p.m. on "Women in Islam." Ms. Zuhur is the author of Revealing Revelling and a professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Neena Gulati will perform classical dances of India with live musical accompaniment at 7:45 p.m. She is the founder of Triveni School of Dance in Brookline.

Both events will be held at Kemper Auditorium and are free of charge. The public is invited.

Internationally known sinologist Dr. Timothy Light will give a lecture on "China as a Mirror," accompanied by a slide show and audio tapes, Friday, April 24, at 7 p.m. in the George Washington Hall theater on the PA campus.

Dr. Light, a professor at Western Michigan University and former president of Middlebury College, will focus on Chinese culture and society from a Westerner's eye. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Sculpture of poet dedicated

A sculpture of Robert Frost created in stone by Jose Buscaglia will be dedicated at Merrimack College Friday, April 24, at 1:30 p.m.

The three-quarter figure of the American poet is 6 feet high and will sit atop a 66-inch high pedestal. Both sculpture and pedestal have been donated to the college by Richard McCoy, a New Hampshire entrepreneur and art lover.

Children from the Robert Frost Elementary School in Lawrence, the artist and the donor will be among the guests at the dedication.

One of the most prolific artists in public monumental sculpture, Mr. Buscaglia has executed more than 20 public monuments and innumerable works for public and private collections.

A professor at Yale, he is a director of the Academy of Arts and Sciences of Puerto Rico.

Mr. Buscaglia once described Mr. Frost as "practically a living statue" with thick white hair and eyebrows and a beautifully lined face.

The public is invited to the dedication and a reception afterward. To attend, call Maureen Lanigan at 837-5448.

Local residents in shows

ATC has usurped the free time of 10 Andoverites for its production of "The Wrights of Spring." That's half of the entire list of bios in the playbill for this evening of three one-act plays.

People in the Wind has the largest cast, including Karen Deffenbach in the central role of "The Girl." She recently relocated from Ohio and is a sales representative for Ashland Chemical. Her background includes drama, musical and comedy.

Joe Miglio teaches communications and critical analysis at Cambridge College. He plays "The Drunk," a former professor forced into retirement when the demon rum interfered with his teaching abilities.

The Greater Merrimack Valley Chorale, directed by David Tierney, will present a spring concert of Renaissance music featuring madrigals, motets and the William Byrd Mass for Four Voices. Tickets are $7, $5 for seniors and students and will be available at the door. The concert dates are Saturday, May 2, at 8 p.m. in St. Augustine Church on Essex Street; Sunday, May 3, at 4 p.m. in Conover Hall at Bradford College in Haverhill; and Friday, May 8, at 8 p.m. in the First Congregational Church of Methuen, 26 Pleasant St., Methuen.

Chorale readies concert

Andoverites star in one-act plays

Sue O'Neill plays Grace, the cynical waitress who has "seen it all before and wasn't impressed the first time." She is a frequent cast member in Andover Theatre shows, including Anything Goes, in which she played a partying cruiser, and Man of La Mancha, as the innkeeper's wife.

Jane Vondell is "Old Lady #1," a character role for a woman with a lot of character. Ms. Vondell is known for writing comic songs or monologues incorporating her talents and wit and entertains directors with her fresh approach.

Director Ryan Woosley is very fortunate. Even in her "real job" she has the opportunity to hone her theatrical talents. Ms. Woosley creates "corporate comedy" productions, multimedia slide shows and training videos.

Two-thirds of the cast of Haiku live in Andover.

Barbara Bourgeois, a commercial actress in local, regional and national television spots, plays Nell, the optimistic mother of two grown daughters. She has also acted in Quannapowitt productions and with the Nora Theatre in Cambridge.

Juree James, Louise in this play, has an unusual name and home town - Rapid City, S.D. For three seasons she has contributed to a variety of shows as an actor, singer and dancer. Ms. James has an associate of art degree in music education and is a full-time nanny.

Pam Le Mieux is the much-sought after lighting director for numerous shows. In Haiku she sheds light on the complex story in a new way, she is the play's director. The show was chosen to represent ATC in the New England Theater Conference, the competition for up to 30 community theater groups. Ms. Le Mieux is vice president of Nailhead Creations in Lawrence.

Untidy Endings is a showcase for three Andoverites.

Janet Alberich, a sales representative for Mary Kay Cosmetics, was "volunteered" by her children as makeup artist for ATC 10 years ago.

Her abilities for acting, management and fund raising have also been tapped. She serves on the board of directors and was most recently seen in the role of Mrs. Harcourt in Anything Goes.

Dana Gum makes her ATC onstage debut as the attorney, June, after assisting backstage for three years. Untidy Endings is a serious adult drama, but it is children's theater that holds a special appeal for Ms. Gum. Her favorite theater experience was producing Walk This Way, written by her daughter, Sabrina. Ms. Gum has acted with other groups and teaches theater skills classes for elementary and junior high school.

Marcelle Gregg developed a new respect for the role of director during this show. She found out that directors have to think of everything.

Her experience with sets and stage management provided basic knowledge in those areas, but as director, lighting, actors, business, publicity, props and costumes were also her concern.

This music is for kids

The Phillips Academy music department will present a children's concert by students, faculty and friends of the academy Sunday, April 26, at 3 p.m. in Cochran Chapel, located on Chapel Avenue.

The Phillips Academy Community Orchestra, under the direction of Christopher Walter, will play Charles Saint-Saens' Carnival of the Animals.

Featured soloists are junior Charles Rhee and freshman Judith Lee, piano; sophomore Alana Petraske, flute; senior Robert Kim, clarinet; Quintan Hodges, music teacher and Andover resident, bass; and Elizabeth Auden, cello teacher.

Also featured on the program is Francis Poulenc's Babar the Elephant. The narrator is Vincent Monaco of the PA music faculty.

PA's Fidelio Society will perform drinking songs from France and England Wednesday, see page 23.

Piano soloist Carol Elowe, who also teaches at the academy, will be featured in Poulenc's piece. Ms. Elowe, a native of Maine, is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston and Syracuse University. Her teaching experience includes the extension divisions of the New England Conservatory in the Boston area and North Shore Community College.

She has appeared as a guest artist with the Boston Pops under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, and with the Syracuse Symphony under the direction of Christopher Keene. She has played recitals at several New York and New England colleges and universities, including Syracuse and Eisenhower, Connecticut and Bowdoin colleges.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Local woman is B'nai B'rith's Person of Year

By David R. McCallum

Norma Eisenberg of Andover, who has played a lead role in the opening and upkeep of several head-trauma facilities around the world, has been named B'nai B'rith's 1992 Person of the Year.

B'nai B'rith will present Mrs. Eisenberg with the award Sunday, April 26, at 10 a.m. at Temple Emanuel, 7 Haggetts Pond Road.

When Mrs. Eisenberg's son, Richard, received a severe head injury 14 years ago, he wasn't expected to live through the hour. Thanks to his doctors, he is still alive.

But Mrs. Eisenberg found herself facing a new dilemma when her son got out of the hospital. She said there were no centers for head-trauma victims that were either close by or affordable. So she decided to do something about it.

Two years later, Mrs. Eisenberg began her work with head-trauma victims. She has worked for head-trauma care facilities around the world, from Massachusetts to Minnesota to Japan. It is for Mrs. Eisenberg's dedication to the care of head-trauma victims that B'nai B'rith is honoring her, said Louis Zidle, secretary and incoming president of the organization's Joseph G. Koffman Lodge #1522.

An educational psychologist, Mrs. Eisenberg received her master's degree in special education from Lesley College in Cambridge and her bachelor of arts degree from New York University. She has received countless certifications in recognition of her study of substance abuse, counseling and medical special needs, and has received a citation from the Massachusetts Senate for outstanding efforts in head injury care.

She is one of the founders of the National Head Injury Foundation, and was on the board of Vital Life After Trauma. Her community service includes her work on the special-education task force and as a youth group adviser for Temple Emanuel.

"She has given so much for others with no thought of personal gain," Mr. Zidle said.

This summer, Mrs. Eisenberg is planning to open a house to help trauma survivors re-enter society. She is especially active in the special education of younger people. Most head-injury victims are between the ages of 16 and 25, she said.

Tickets for Sunday's awards ceremony, which includes breakfast, are $8, and will be available at the door.

David McCallum is the Townsman's intern. He is a freshman at Phillips Academy.

Holocaust service

Dr. Waldoks is a frequent contributor to Hadassah magazine, as well as to the Second Jewish Catalog, Contemporary Jewish Religious Thought and The Hadassah Magazine Jewish Parenting Book.

The Temple Emanuel choir, under the direction of Cantor Dorn Rosensweig, will contribute to the service. The community is welcome.

Special Olympians train for summer's games

20 Algonquin Ave. Both have undeveloped mental and motor skills, according to their mother.

"They were both developmentally delayed from birth," Ms. Leonard said.

But neither lets his handicap stop him, on or off the athletic fields.

Rusty, 23, who attended Learning Prep School in Newton for 17 years, is in a transition work-study program for handicapped students at Middlesex Community College. He is in class three days a week and works the other two days at the Suffolk Law Library in Boston, where he mostly copies documents for professors. He worked at Barcelos grocery for four and a half years, until it closed two years ago, and now works at DeMoulas Market Basket in Andover at night.

Rusty takes the train to Boston, but drives himself to Middlesex Community College. He's had his license since he was 19, but only a couple of months ago started driving to school, not because he couldn't do it earlier, but it was "a problem letting go" for his mother, Ms. Leonard said.

Jon, who will be 17 in two weeks, is a junior at Andover High School where he is in a work-study program. Two hours every morning he goes to Bull Worldwide Information Systems in Lawrence where he disassembles computers on an assembly line, then returns to classes in the afternoon.

"Jon does well in school," Ms. Leonard said.

"I just got my grades today," Jon said Monday. "I got A's and B's."

Both athletes have been taking part in Special Olympics for seven or eight years.

"It's fun. You get to meet interesting people from different towns," Rusty said.

"Both boys played soccer. Jonathan has tried his hand at baseball and basketball," Ms. Leonard said.

Rusty has less eye-hand coordination for baseball and less speed for basketball.

But the young men don't consider themselves handicapped, according to their mother.

"Handicapped kids are funny. They don't think of themselves as handicapped," she said.

It is only when others point out their weaknesses or disabilities that they feel handicapped, Ms. Leonard said.

Jon was a point guard on the Special Olympics basketball team in the spring, and will compete in the 50-meter dash and softball throw at the area games next month. He took a gold in the softball throw at last year's state games and a bronze in the 50-meter dash.

Jonathan and Russell Leonard, of 20 Algonquin Ave., are two of the athletes from Andover who will compete in the Special Olympics this summer.

41 locals involved in games

Andover has 41 Special Olympians, aged 5 to 31, competing in track and field events this spring and summer, beginning with the qualifying trials at Cawley Stadium in Lowell on Saturday, May 2, and winding up at the state games at Boston College on June 19, 20 and 21.

More than 7,000 athletes will take part in the games statewide.

Organizers in Andover are trying to raise funds to buy uniforms, or at least T-shirts, for the local athletes in time for the May 2 games.

"We have like a zero balance," said Jean Comstock, a volunteer coordinator with the Andover Special Olympics.

Anyone wishing to make a donation for the uniforms can send a four-by-four relay race. Both young men said they are competitive with other opponents, but not with each other.

The Leonards had a basketball hoop in their yard until the basket was ripped off by a friend, and it hasn't yet been replaced.

"We used to play one-on-one together," said Jon.

check payable to Andover Special Olympics to Marilyn Carriere, 78 Chandler Road, or Jean Comstock, 8 Random Lane, both in Andover.

Other events scheduled for May 2 at Cawley Stadium include parachute jumpers landing in the stadium, a carnival and a softball tournament.

Soccer

Special Olympics officials are also planning to start Special Olympics soccer in Andover this fall and are looking for volunteers to help coach.

"We're going to make a model for the whole state. Andover will be the first one," said Mike Gagnon, local Special Olympics coordinator.

Applications for both participants and volunteer coaches for fall soccer should contact Jack Monterio at 687-3747.

"Yeah. All the time," Rusty added.

Jon now spends most free time playing Sega Genesis, a computer video game, down in the basement of the family's home.

They both attend a program organized by Phillips Academy students for special-needs residents at the campus on Tuesday nights. The two also belong to the alternate leisure program, a Friday night get-together that rounds up area special needs students for activities such as a trip to the movies, a play or the circus.

"They get along very well," Ms. Leonard said of Rusty and Jon. "Of course they're the best of friends."

And friends are not easy to come by for handicapped children, Ms. Leonard said.

"Anyone who has children with special problems knows the heartache of friendships. They are few and far between," she said.

It was tougher to make friends for Rusty because he was away at school so much growing up. Jon stayed in Andover where he met friends such as Denise Carriere, 17, of 78 Chandler Road, another Special Olympian who shares special-education classes with Jon.

"They've been together since they were 3 years old," Ms. Leonard said.

Both Rusty and Jon said it didn't matter if they qualified for the state games in Boston next month, that it was fun just to take part in the area games, and that it would be better if other athletes, who didn't get to the states last year, had the chance to go this year.

Rusty and Jon have another brother, Jeffrey, 21, a senior at Fairfield University in Connecticut, who is planning to go on to dental school at Tufts University, and a sister, Suzanne, 13, who was adopted 11 years ago from El Salvador and is a student at West Middle School. They also have a dog, Oreo, who really loves Oreo cookies.

Andover runners did Boston Marathon

"You're in with the big boys," Mr. Sheehy said. "It was certainly a thrill."

Mr. Sheehy had never run more than five miles until he started training for Boston last December. The 6-foot, 1-inch manufacturer's representative trimmed his 252 pounds down to 207 by last week, and was hoping to finish in under five hours.

He wasn't sure Tuesday if he'd be back to do it again next year.

"I'll talk to you at Christmas," Mr. Sheehy said. "Today's not the day to ask."

In addition to Brendan Jr., Mr. Sheehy and his wife, Betsy, have twin boys, Tim and Michael, who go to South School, and a daughter, Colleen, at Doherty Middle School.

Mr. Sheehy's story was just one tale of trial and triumph that participants who live or work in Andover told after Monday's 96th annual Boston Marathon.

Approximately 15,000 runners took part in the race, which began at noon Monday in Hopkinton and ended at Copley Square in Boston, 26.2 miles later. Ibrahim Hussein, of Kenya, won the race in 2:08:14. The female winner was Olga Markova, of Russia, in 2:23:43.

High humidity at the start followed by blazing sunshine and temperatures near 70 degrees tortured the runners.

Donald W. Dee, 39, of 27 Cheever Circle, completed his second Boston Marathon Monday, which was his second marathon ever, and he did it in 3:50:05. In 1985 he completed his first marathon, Boston, in 4:15.

He was pleased with his time Monday and said he never felt bad.

"It felt great, it really did," said Mr. Dee, who works for an investment firm in New Hampshire. "It was one of those days that turned out well for me. I was waiting to feel poorly and it never happened."

Mr. Dee ran the marathon for two reasons. First, his brother ran a triathlon, "which was inspiring." And second, he dedicated his run to his mother, who lives in Tewksbury.

"She had experienced a bout with cancer," said Mr. Dee. "I dedicated my run to her. Cancer patients and people like her are quite a source of motivation. They are truly being challenged 24 hours a day, seven days a week. They are really courageous people."

***

Kevin Sullivan, 43, of 55 North St., finished Monday in 3:24:30. His goal was 3:20. This was his sixth Boston and his ninth marathon. His best time was the Marine Corps Marathon in 1990, which he finished in 3:14.

Now, Mr. Sullivan, who is an attorney with the North Andover firm of John J. Cronin, is wondering if he will qualify for next year's Boston Marathon. He says he will be allowed a handicap for the race's slow start, but he expects he may miss qualifying by a minute and a half.

Asked if he'd run Boston without a number, Mr. Sullivan said, "I'd probably do it."

Asked how he was feeling Tuesday morning, Mr. Sullivan said, "I am surprisingly well. The fact that it was warm at the finish line gave the muscles a chance to recover. It was sunny at the end."

***

Keith Driscoll, 25, of 8 Joseph St., finished Boston, his first marathon, in 3:45:15. He said he really didn't have a goal time to finish, although "maybe four hours" was a time he was thinking of.

"It was very exciting," said Mr. Driscoll, who is an engineer for the National Guard, working in Reading. "I was amazed at all the people along the way."

The most difficult part of running, said Mr. Driscoll, were the "hundreds of miles" he ran before Monday.

"It was a good experience. I'm sure I'll do another one, but none in the near future."

***

Andrew Gully, 35, of 1 Stratford Road, ran his first-ever marathon Monday and finished in 4:51. The longest he'd ever run before Boston was eight miles.

"It wasn't too bright," admitted Mr. Gully, executive city editor of the Boston Herald. "My feet today are like cheese pizzas."

He said his wife, Jacqueline, and their children, Jocelyn, 3, and Hanna, 19 months, were his cheering gallery and they managed to encourage him at three different sites along the marathon route.

When the Townsmen ran a story about who from Andover was planning to run, Mr. Gully read about Tom McCarron of Andover, who also was planning to run Boston. Mr. Gully decided that was his kind of guy: around the same age and a person who said his goal was to finish and not on a stretcher. So he called Mr. McCarron and they planned to ride into Boston together. Unfortunately, Mr. McCarron was injured and not able to run.

"He had done it right and worked hard for the marathon," Mr. Gully said Tuesday. "I thought of him a lot when I felt like quitting. I had him in mind."

Mr. Gully said he never will run another marathon. "Ever since I was a little kid I've wanted to do one," he said. "Now I'll do my usual three or four miles so I can eat as much as I want."

***

Mr. McCarron, 35, of 18 Morton St., had trained to run his first marathon Monday, but injured himself and couldn't run at all.

Mr. McCarron, who works at Raytheon Company's Japanese Programs Division at Brickstone Square, has been running for five years. Mr. McCarron and his wife, Joan, moved to Andover five years ago. The couple have a son, Matthew, 3.

***

Bill Pennington, 37, of 46 Clark Road, had a goal of three hours and finished in 3:05:30. His best marathon was a 2:38 in Minnesota in 1986 and he had a 2:55 in Boston last year.

***

goal of beating his 2:46 last year.

"I was hoping to do three or four minutes better," Mr. Stableford said Tuesday.

He was doing well until 20 miles when the heat got to him, Mr. Stableford said. But he said he still had fun and will be back next year.

"I enjoyed the whole thing," Mr. Stableford said.

***

Jacques Douvra, 52, from France, who stayed with his sister and brother-in-law, Dan and Geraldine Tambasco, of 41 Washington Ave., while here to run Boston, finished in about 3:53 after hurting his leg, according to his sister.

***

Andover police officer Bob Cronin, 36, finished in 3:41, just behind his wife, Sue Cronin, who came in at 3:35.

Sharon Yu, 39, of 4 Pepperidge Circle, finished in 4:02, slower than her 3:30 goal.

She ran a 3:39 in Lowell last October. "I think the heat had something to do with it," Ms. Yu said. She didn't drink enough water and started getting cramps in her quadriceps at Wellesley College, at about 13 miles.

Ms. Yu was "sore, real sore," on Tuesday.

"I had to let my dog out this morning and as soon as I put my foot down on the second step my whole leg cramped up."

***

Christine Robertsen, 55, of Stevens Street and an employee at Phillips Academy, ran her third marathon this year in 4:39:20. She had hoped for a 4:05 to requalify for next year.

***

Jerry Bligh, 32, a postal carrier for the Andover post office with a route in West Andover, finished his first marathon Monday in 4:58:43.

"It was great," Mr. Bligh said.

Mr. Bligh started last year's marathon but dropped out on Heartbreak Hill, about 20 miles into the race. This year he persevered.

He hurt his leg jockeying for position in the crowded start and felt bad for a while after that.

"I had trouble in the middle," Mr. Bligh said.

But the pains went away and he steadied his pace later in the race.

"I was cruising at the end," Mr. Bligh said.

He took the day off Tuesday, so the mail should have still gotten out on time. Mr. Bligh wasn't sure Tuesday if he'd be running again next year.

"I'm debating," he said.

***

Patrick J. Donahue, 43, of 15 Chandler Circle, an anesthesiologist at St. John's Hospital in Lowell, ran 3:37, about the same as last year. This was his third marathon and he was shooting for around 3:30.

He had pains in his shins for the first six miles but they went away after that.

"I felt really good on the hills," Mr. Donahue said.

He felt great when he spotted his wife, Nancy, and children, Meghan, 12, Eric, 10, and Ellen, 9, at the Hotel

***

Dan Buchholz, 15, of 3 Delphi Circle, ran a 3:54, beating his time last year of 4:13 by 19 minutes, and realizing his goal of breaking four hours. This was Dan's third Boston Marathon in a row.

Dan was on a 3:26 pace through about 18 miles but faded toward the end.

Dan is a member of the track team at Andover High School and was hoping Tuesday that his coach, Dick Collins, wouldn't be too upset with him for messing up his track training with the marathon.

***

Bob Nelken, 43, of 4 Whispering Pines Drive, was "a little disappointed" with his 4:09 finish. He was hoping to better his 4:03 last year and maybe break four hours. He was right on two hours at the halfway point, but he also faded later in the race.

"The last five (miles) were very hard. I was very tired. I didn't have anything left at the end."

Mr. Nelken was in a cast after he injured his foot playing soccer last summer, but has been back training for the past few months. He wasn't sure about next year.

"I don't know yet. You'll have to ask me in a week or so."

***

Mr. Nelken ran with Bill Scott, 39, of 80 Bartlet St., a faculty member at Phillips Academy, most of the way, but Mr. Scott pulled away and finished in 4:06.

***

Howie Gordon, 42, of 25 Bateson Drive, cramped up for a long way and finished in 4:25, much slower than his 3:51 last year.

***

Mike Arthur, 46, of 51 Red Spring Road, ran with Keith Jaffe, of Bradford, and both finished in 3:55. Mr. Arthur beat his last year's finish by three minutes but fell short of his goal to requalify with a 3:25.

***

Peter Demarco, 46, of 1 Shawnee Circle, finished in 4:58.

***

Lisa Doucett, 36, of 137 N. Main St., finished in 3:41:52. She ran 3:30 last year.

John Filbin, 39, of 40 Oriole Drive, 3:37:46;

Sang Joo, 50, of 5 Yardley Road, 3:41:37;

William Marlow, 47, of 42 Juniper Road, 3:18:28;

Thomas McGrath, 38, of 16 Bal-moral St., 3:31:03;

David Quintal, 28, of 80 Carmel Road, 3:45:21. He ran 2:55 last year.

Results were not available for Norman Goldberg, 42, of 27 Hemlock Road, or Bradley Doll, 29.

AVIS' Wilkinson will soon be filled with flowers

By Marta Hornidge

With the arrival of robins comes an urge to check out the progress of the spring season on AVIS (Andover Village Improvement Society) reservations. At this writing in mid-April, my first spring signals are red-winged black birds flitting about, claiming their territory in the Goldsmith Woodlands, a few inches of emerging purple skunk cabbage on many reservations and of greatest excitement a baby great horned owl overflowing its nest at Deer Jump Reservation.

Now that a comfortable walking season has at last emerged, it is time to complete the series of articles describing the larger AVIS reservations started awhile ago. Two reservations are left, Wilkinson and Sanborn.

Wilkinson Reservation, soon to be filled with spring flowers, is a perfect place to visit at this season. Located on Woburn Street just across from Camp Forty Acres and just past the junction of Rocky Hill Road, it is also a fine example of two glacial features, eskers and kettle holes. Eskers are created by deposits of rocks and coarse gravel by meltwater streams flowing through crevices and tunnels in the glacier. The resulting gravel ridges, or eskers, can be as high as 100 feet and several miles long. This reservation is made up of several lower, but steeply banked eskers. Kettle holes, ponds created by melting ice and snow in a scooped-out depression, lie between the eskers.

After entering the property marked by an AVIS wooden sign, follow white rectangular markers on the trees that lead either around the periphery of the property or steeply down the first esker, passing a fair-sized kettle hole and straight up the next hill. One trail along the crest of the hill leads to a sturdy bench overlooking a peaceful view over an arm of Foster's Pond. Al Koch and others helped to lay out these trails and also supervised an Eagle Scout in building the well placed bench.

The trees bordering the paths are mostly white oak and pine. A impressive group of graceful hemlocks can be enjoyed at one side of the property. While walking through this hemlock grove, I was fortunate enough to spot an osprey, a light brown, immense bird with a wide wing span, that flew silently over my head. Walkers who have reported seeing the lone blue heron in the Goldsmith Reservation, also bordering Foster's Pond, will be pleased that our heron is no longer alone. Judy Lucas, who with her husband, John, are wardens of this property, have seen the mate. I was told the pair wait for each other before taking off over Foster's Pond. How nice!

The wardens alerted me to watch for the spring arrival of lady slippers, trilliums, white swamp azaleas, hot pink, small flowered mountain laurel and many more plants. On a sunny day (rare at this writing), the ponds are raucous with the noises of frogs galumphing and peepers high pitched peeping. Taffy, my golden retriever, cocking her head this way and that, was greatly disturbed over this commotion, which ceased entirely when we stood at the pond's edge. Could these creatures see us?

Irvin and Marsha Wilkinson gave the land to AVIS in 1981 to be preserved and cared for. Their son, David, a science teacher at the high school, used this geologically interesting property as a laboratory for his students.

Though not large, 23 acres, this reservation, rich in geological interest and spring flowers, should be included in walks for nature curious people. Some day, with permission from property owners, it might be possible to link the Goldsmith Woodlands' walk around Foster's Pond with Wilkinson, making a fine afternoon's excursion.

EDITORIALS

The value of a marathon

Congratulations to those who participated in the Boston Marathon Monday.

While there are those who wonder if you are crazy to do such an awesome thing, there are those of us who realize the value of such an undertaking.

Take for example, the story of Andrew Gully, the 35-year-old well-educated man who did Boston after only having run eight miles at one time before Monday. We say he must be educated; he is executive city editor of the Boston Herald. But kidding aside, one of the most important parts of Mr. Gully's story is the fact that his inspiration, when he felt like quitting, came from thinking of a new friend who had trained hard but was too injured to run. We are impressed with the source of Mr. Gully's inspiration.

Donald W. Dee's story is similar to Mr. Gully's. The 39-year old Andover resident ran, yes for himself, but also for his mother. She has been fighting cancer and Mr. Dee dedicated his run to her.

"Cancer patients and people like her are quite a source of motivation," Mr. Dee told us. "They are truly being challenged 24 hours a day, seven days a week. They are really courageous people."

We are not suggesting running 26-plus miles is a good goal for everyone. For some, it works. For others, some different goal is better. But we understand the meaning of working for a cause, whether it produces a good feeling for personally achieving, or for working for the good of someone about whom you care.

Good work. We admire what you did.

Family portraits

The Townsmen will publish, at no cost to you, family portraits of Andover residents or people who work in Andover. Perhaps your family had such a photo taken at Passover or Easter.

The photos can be in color if they are in focus. Black and white is best.

Photos are due Wednesday, April 29 and will be published May 7. Please include names, an address and a phone number.

Notes on the marathon, the Earth, more

By Perry Colmore Catlin

I've heard people ask why anyone would want to run the Boston Marathon. I think the answer is simple: because they can.

Wendy Barry of 2 Greybirch Road called after I wrote last week about the trash, junk and unmentionables the staff of the Townsmen found while cleaning up an area of downtown, near Rogers Brook, during Earth Day.

"I was agreeing with you about rubbish," said Ms. Barry, who lives in West Andover, off River Road.

She said people leave their trash in plastic bags on trash days in her area.

"Crows and dogs seem to rip them open," said Ms. Barry. "On windy days, the rubbish blows all around. We used to live in Tewksbury. The rule there is you have to have covered garbage barrels. It works pretty well."

"I don't like regulations, but the town could say it wouldn't pick it up unless it's in a covered barrel."

She has a point.

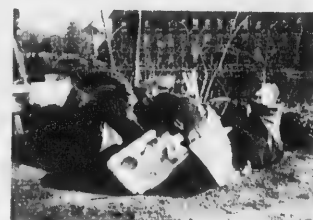

My idea is that people's consciousness level about litter needs prodding again. When I was a child, it wasn't unusual to see a person throw a whole bag of trash out a car window. Today, if someone does that, a person in another car who sees it is likely to follow the culprit and confront him or her about the dirty deed. I know someone who will even follow a person who has thrown a lit cigarette out a car and ask that person not to do that.

I'm too much of a wimp, or I think someone will take their handgun out of their glove compartment and wipe me out. I'm not willing to go through that, even for our Earth.

Now, I think all of us have to be reminded that we've run out of space to drop litter out windows, etc., and that we all have to clean up our own section of the Earth.

And speaking of Earth Day, I wanted to show you this photo of trash from an excellent cleanup effort by a group of 15 Andover High School teen-agers who spent the day canoeing the recesses of the Shawsheen River.

Here's a bit of what they found: several rimmed tires, a plastic sled, several barrels, discarded car parts, and 16 bags of trash. Sophomore Sean Donohue organized this cleanup for Earth Day as a requirement for the completion of his Eagle Scout badge. See their story on page 15.

Sinks, tires, rubbish, trash, trash and trash - all in the Shawsheen River.

Town Meeting is no longer useful

Editor, Townsmen:

Town Meeting is over for another year. I sat through it to the bitter end. And I do mean bitter, which is why I am moved to put in writing today what I and many others have been saying for years. Town Meeting has long outlived its usefulness. It is no longer either democratic or efficacious.

At one time Town Meeting was the very embodiment of democracy. Citizens met, discussed important issues and decided on courses of action. But, remember, at that time citizens meant men and Andover was a small community of farmers, small tradesmen and shopkeepers whose time commitments were very different from those of Andover's residents today. Late 20th-century life means that Town Meeting disenfranchises many, many of our citizens.

Women have the vote today, but can they get babysitters on school nights until 11:15 p.m. (which is when I returned home last night, directly from the meeting)? How about people such as police, nurses, telephone operators and waiters who work the evening shift? Or those hospitalized with a broken leg or heart attack or home with a newborn baby? What about people whose jobs require them to travel, who are out of the state or out of the country during town meeting? They are all denied the right to vote on important issues, and what would happen if all 17,000 registered voters did show up for town meeting?

A second significant problem with Town Meeting is that many of today's issues are too complex for people to understand fully in the short space of time necessarily allotted to each article in the warrant. Often citizens present give strongly opposing views on a particular issue. I might feel that I agree partially with both of them, but I am forced to make an immediate decision, unless we vote to put the issue off to another town meeting, which may not be for another year.

I propose a system in which the town would hold a series of meetings at which properly submitted articles would be thoroughly discussed. The meetings could be televised to reach the widest possible number of voters. After possible modifications to articles, following the discussion, further research, etc., we could then have a written vote, perhaps over a two- or three-day period, again to encourage full participation. Using this system, no one could "pack" the meeting for a particular issue; much of the current rancor and extremely unpleasant behavior would disappear and I believe that we would arrive at better, and certainly better-informed, decisions.

I charge the selectmen to appoint a committee (on which I'd be willing to sit) that would develop a system of government that would serve the needs of our time and the future and relegate town meeting to its proper place - history books.

Held hostage at Town Meeting

Editor, Townsmen:

On Tuesday night of April 14, 382 good citizens from Andover were held hostage at the Collins Center Town Meeting by the parliamentary maneuvers of John Doyle and others.

I attended the Town Meeting because I wanted to address vital town issues:

- Authorizing the repair of town water mains;
- Building safe sidewalks for our school children;
- Capital improvements and repairs to school buildings; and
- Rejuvenating our flagging commercial downtown.

Instead, Mr. Doyle treated us to a round of quorum counts, disputes of hand votes, requests for standing votes, questioning of vote counts, quarrels over motions and procedural brow-beating.

I don't know why this filibustering takes place at Town Meeting. Why have the citizens at Town Meeting tolerated these unproductive tactics for so many years?

If this is a personal dispute between Mr. Doyle and the town moderator, let's keep the personal fight out of the Town Meeting where real business must be conducted.

In the business world, individuals called "corporate gadflies" purchase one share of stock so they can attend a corporate shareholders' meeting hoping to find an unwary forum for their unannounced agenda. However, corporate shareholders who adopt "anti-gadfly rules" do not have to be held hostage by the procedural wranglings of these "gadfly" individuals.

Must the majority of the good citizens at Town Meeting tolerate the manipulations of one or two "Town Meeting gadflies?" Not if the majority exercises its rights under democracy and insist on "anti-gadfly rules" at the next Town Meeting.

Campaign contributions create problems

Editor, Townsmen:

The House banking scandal provides a clear example of poor judgment, sloppy personal financial management and arrogance on the part of many lawmakers. However, it doesn't cost taxpayers money, it doesn't imply serious corruption and it doesn't constitute a threat to the healthy functioning of democracy.

In contrast, the Savings and Loan disaster was facilitated by large bribes in the form of campaign contributions to appropriate senators by elements of the banking industry. But the Keating Five received a mere slap on the wrist for their role in the scandal which will end up costing the taxpayers hundreds of billions of dollars.

Why was this senatorial corruption dealt with so lightly? As the current Bill Moyers series Listening to America shows so clearly, it is because buying Congressional votes through campaign contributions has become so routine that neither the senators nor the media nor the public are seriously upset. How much more readily we are outraged by the relatively harmless stupidities of many congressmen and members of the president's cabinet and staff. How much more painful to confront the corruption of the legislative process by current campaign fund raising practices.

By all means abolish the House Bank and cut back on White House staff perks, but these measures will do little to restore good government in any fundamental way. To re-establish Congress as an effective instrument acting on behalf of the best interests of the American people, we must free congressmen from the need to raise enormous sums of money in order to get elected.

'Music has taught me much'

Editor, Townsmen:

While the majority of the students in this town play sports to gain a feeling of accomplishment, I play the sax. Ever since fourth grade, I have enjoyed sitting up on stage in front of my friends and family, playing solos and being with the band.

Music has taught me many things, such as doing your personal best at everything you do, have fun doing it and the importance of teamwork.

To me the sax is as important as a pencil is to a writer. It is a way of communicating with people and expressing how I feel. Mr. Keroak gives me a sense of pride in myself and my school just as a coach does with an athlete. Whether or not I ever touch the saxophone again for the rest of my life, the skills he has given me will be with me forever.

Earlier this year I learned another lesson, this one being a lesson that I can't smile about. The lesson I learned has to do with economics and that the arts are the first thing to go in these troubled times. Sadly, I found out about a proposed cut in the music department.

Last year we lost Mr. O'Toole, a great instrumental music teacher, to the budget and this year the School Committee plans to cut even more. It will mean an end to both the Jazz Band and Marching Band. I am happily a part of both of these groups. The only logical thing to do, in my mind, is to accept the proposal of a music fee, a fee which will allow the musical program to continue. Personally I would rather pay a fee than have to see an end to two gold medal bands.

When I say I would pay for the fee, I don't mean my parents would pay for it. I mean I would pay the fee. The musical program has taught me so much about life that it is now time for me to give back. We are already paying for the Jazz Band and if we need to pay for the Marching Band as well, I would be happy to pay for it. The fee would be a relatively small price to pay for the amount of skills that are being taught in the musical department.

Is there an AHS 25th reunion?

Editor, Townsmen:

I graduated in the class of 1967 from Andover High School and realize that this year would be our 25th reunion. I haven't heard anything about this happening.

I am hoping that if anyone back home has any information, they could contact your paper and I could make plans to fly home from Michigan to attend.

As I have never been to a class reunion, I would hate to miss this one or find out that no one has organized one. I would appreciate it if anyone should have any information about this. It sure would be nice to see old friends after all these years.

Workers take down the Town Meeting banner from Old Town Hall late last week. Some residents (see letters on page 37) believe it's time to take down Town Meeting, as well.

Does it work?

ers came Tuesday night and by the last few votes, only 354 remained, barely maintaining the 350 needed for a legal quorum.

John Doyle, of 40 Reservation Road, made presentations for each of his five proposals on the 56 article warrant, including one on Tuesday night about his right to make lengthy presentations. Another dealt with the right to call a quorum count, and as the meeting moved past 10 p.m. Tuesday, Mr. Doyle riled up many Town Meeting voters when he made repeated calls for a count. The quorum was present, right up to the last article, but Mr. Doyle's delays visibly frustrated many voters.

It didn't make things easy for moderator James D. Doherty either.

"It was by far the toughest night I've ever put in as moderator," Mr. Doherty said last week.

Town Meeting, open or representative, is still the most prevalent, if not always the most popular, style of government in the state, according to Buzz Stapczynski, Andover town manager who served as president of the Massachusetts Municipal Assoc. last year.

"Most of the 351 cities and towns are run by town meeting," according to Mr. Stapczynski. "The vast majority are open town meetings."

Of the 351 municipalities in Massachusetts, 38 are cities, with either a mayor or town manager, and a city council form of government.

Of the 213 towns, five have town councils, 46 use representative town meeting and 162 use an open town meeting form of government like Andover's.

Massachusetts law provides that no town with fewer than 12,000 residents may adopt a city form of government, and no town with less than 6,000 residents may adopt a representative town meeting form of government. Andover, with 29,000 residents, could take either option.

A lot of the towns Andover might compare itself to, Reading, Winchester, Lexington and Danvers to name a few, use representative town meeting. Representative town meeting would divide the town into probably between 100 and 200 districts, and voters in each district would then elect a member to represent them at town meeting.

Mr. Stapczynski said he really didn't have a public opinion as to which form of town meeting he favored.

"I'll deal with the hand that's dealt me. There are pros and cons to each one," Mr. Stapczynski said.

Attendance is less of a problem for representative town meeting because the attendance record is public and elected representatives tend not to last too long if they miss meetings, according to Mr. Stapczynski.

Jim Doherty

James D. Doherty, Andover town moderator for 15 years and a director of the Mass. Moderators Assoc., believes in open town meeting and doesn't think Andover should change.

"I don't see any disadvantages to it," Mr. Doherty said.

There is no trend to move toward representative town meeting, according to Mr. Doherty, and he questioned whether attendance would be any better with representatives.

"There are times when they have a lot of trouble getting members for representative meetings," Mr. Doherty said.

And the smaller your ultimate governing group, the easier it is for a special-interest group to control it, Mr. Doherty said.

He thinks the state (Continued on page 39)

made a mistake when eight or 10 years ago it reduced the number of state representatives from 240 to 160. A special-interest group needed to control 121 votes before. Now they need only 81.

That is less apt to happen in an open town meeting, where every resident is allowed to vote. And if sometimes an effort is made to pack a meeting with a certain group to get a certain vote, that's everyone's right too, according to Mr. Doherty.

"If you think enough about something to get out the vote, then that's the point of self government," Mr. Doherty said. "This business about packing a meeting doesn't bother me at all."

All of Andover's 17,762 registered voters voted last week at Town Meeting. Mr. Doherty said. About 17,150 of them voted not to attend the meeting Monday night. On Tuesday, about 17,350 took that option.

"But they all had a right to go. They all had a right to be there," Mr. Doherty said. "The fact that they were not there was their decision."

The biggest problem with attendance at Andover's town meetings is that many of the new residents are not from New England and have never experienced town meeting government. Those raised under the open town meeting system grew up understanding that they had to attend Town Meeting to know what was going on.

"One thing that we completely lost track of here is we don't have that native born intellect prevalent in Andover today," Mr. Doherty said. "The answer is to expose them to it, educate the newcomers and educate the younger generation."

Statistics show that it would be nearly impossible to ever have all the registered voters show up at town meeting, according to Mr. Doherty. But if the town could get 3,000 to attend, then the town ought to build a bigger hall for the meeting, he said.

He also said other organizations should not plan events in town for the same night as town meeting. Mr. Doherty said he was going to speak to the Rev. Dr. Jack Daniel at the Free Christian Church about his having a function going last Monday night at the same time as town meeting.

"I don't want to have to compete with God," Mr. Doherty said.

"I don't see a need for a change. I see a need for education, but I don't see a need for a change," Mr. Doherty said. "We need education. We need publicity. We need cooperation. It will be a sad state of affairs when the citizens in the town of Andover would consider giving up their right to vote."

The delays caused by a couple of individuals last Tuesday night did more to hurt open town meeting in Andover than anything else has done in 50 years, Mr. Doherty said.

"I was seething at what they were doing to the system," he said.

But those few problems should not diminish the value of the process, he said.

"What we accomplished, in spite of that, is the best argument for open town meeting," Mr. Doherty said. "The town government is very well run. Last Monday and Tuesday night we accomplished one hell of a lot."

Larry Larsen

"I think it works," Dr. Larry Larsen, a member of the Board of Selectmen, said of open town meeting. "It depends on the issues. People come out when they feel they need to come out. Like congressmen."

Dr. Larsen described four groups of people that take part in town meeting. The first group comes because they "like the theater."

"I do," Dr. Larsen said.

They feel they would be missing something if they didn't go.

Another group is always grinding on some issue, the "critics."

"They're sort of the antithetical force out of a Greek drama," Dr.

Larsen said.

They come forward, make their points and retreat.

The third group consists of those who come out for a particular issue, is larger and its membership varies depending on the issues.

The final group feels it is their duty to attend the meeting.

"I feel all four have their place," Dr. Larsen said. "It makes for kind of a giant group therapy."

"I have to say that this year I was upset," Dr. Larsen said.

Too much time was taken up on many private articles with ill advised questions, which caused voters to rush through other articles that warranted more attention, he said. The struggle between certain personalities also wasted time.

"I hope that can improve," Dr. Larsen said.

He does not favor representative town meeting and agrees with Mr. Doherty, that that would just put the power in the hands of fewer people. Even with a light turnout, those who show up at open town meeting do fairly represent the town, according to Dr. Larsen.

"I like it. I'd much rather leave it alone. I think the rough and tumble of town meeting is good."

Just get the focus away from the personal issues, he added.

Bill Downs

"What other kind is there that is more effective? What is the best kind" of town government, Selectman Bill Downs asked.

A dictatorship would be easier, but would it be better?

"The town meeting in Andover has been traditional and I can't see of any other form that would be any better," Mr. Downs said.

Representative town meeting would be the same people that were at the meeting last week anyway, he said. They are the ones who would care enough to go out and get elected.

Town meeting has not changed too much over the years, Mr. Downs said, but residents used to demand more of town officials at the meeting.

"Town meeting isn't as detailed as it used to be," he said. "The people who came were more involved and better informed."

The late Sid White, a former selectman, used to stand up after a vote and tell voters how much they had just raised their taxes, and how much the next vote would cost. Town meeting used to go through the town manager's recommended budget line item by line item, Mr. Downs said. But was it worth it?

"Not really. Except for the fact that the people want to know," Mr. Downs said.

Selectmen should spend more time going over the town manager's budget, he said. Mr. Downs said he bet Bob McQuade, Public

LAST MINUTE REPAIRS

It's settlement day, and the people buying your home are a little cranky. At the walk-through, your dependable old dishwasher stopped midway through its cycle, and the powder room toilet flunked its flush. These situations may cause some anxiety for buyers and sellers, but such problems are quite common and easy to resolve.

Most purchase agreements require the major mechanical systems and any appliances that are included in the sale to be in working order at the time of the settlement. Often defects are discovered during the structural inspection, and the sellers have plenty of time to have repairs made. Even so, there may be last-minute breakdowns or other defects not picked up until the walk-through.

Often, agreements can be made with the sellers at the settlement table to escrow funds for repairs to, or replacement of, items which might be in question.

Women & Joint Custody

After divorce or separation, joint legal custody means that you and your husband must consult and agree on all major decisions governing your children's lives such as medical care, education and religious training. In recent years, joint legal custody has become very fashionable for separated and divorced couples because it appears to offer a way to involve both parents in their children's lives. However, joint legal custody requires you to maintain continued contact with your husband and may mean additional Court involvement in your family's life when you and your husband cannot agree.

OUR NEIGHBORS

To build a church where people will worship . . .

North Andover gets its first Baptist church

By Mary Katis

A new church has not been built in North Andover in the last 20 years. North Andover has never had a Baptist church in the community. Once construction began in August 1991, the residents of North Andover and regular motorists from other towns have been watching the corner of Massachusetts Avenue and Chickering Road. The First Calvary Baptist Church is being built there and the steeple was raised last Thursday.

Since the First Calvary Baptist Church, located near City Hall in Lawrence, had fire damage in January 1988, the congregation has been looking for a place to build a new church. The congregation has been serving the Greater Lawrence area for more than 125 years.

The church trustees established a building committee to research designs for a multifunctional building to service the church's activities of worship, education, social and community service. Seven architectural firms submitted designs to the committee. The Boston firm of de Castro and Nelson was chosen. The firm's design is a contemporary one with a 2,500-square-foot internal courtyard.

The Rev. Donald Dickinson, pastor of the church, said, "The overall look of the church seems like a modified colonial to me. The steeple is Colonial and looks like other New England steeples, but everyone has a different impression."

Rev. Dickinson was visiting a resident of the Prescott Nursing Home when he saw the property in North Andover that could be used for the new church. He told the congregation about the corner location and subsequently, the 2.5 acres were chosen for the new church.

Rebuilding became a concern to church members, people from many local churches and to people in the Greater Lawrence area. The funds from the fire and property insurance, plus the sale of the previous site were used to move a house on the property and to prepare the land for building. Additional funds were donated from the Stevens Family Foundation, Catherine McCarthy Foundation, Webster Family Foundation and the Rogers Family Foundation.

"It seemed like everyone wanted to help us," said Rev. Dickinson. A variety of fund-raisers were planned. The Folk Singers from Sacred Heart Church, Lawrence, donated $9,500 from a passion play production. A youth group from the Littleton Baptist Church held an ice-cream social. Marjorie Johnson, a resident of the Heritage Nursing Home, in Lowell, planned a bake sale with the help of an assistant at the home.

The building committee's next task was to find a contractor. Anthony DiDio, a North Andover contractor and builder, was chosen from a long list of applicants. "Originally, we wanted to try to hire local workman and we have been very pleased with our choice," said Rev. Dickinson.

Mr. DiDio's father, Angelo DiDio, started a construction business in 1955. Anthony DiDio worked for his father's company in the mid-1960s. He graduated from Austin Preparatory School and earned a civil engineering degree from Merrimack College. He was the general contractor for Robert Ulrich's mansion on Phillips Street in Andover. He also built the Lowell boathouse and two marinas on Pawtucket Boulevard, Lowell. The Jewish temple in Peabody, the retreat center at the Assumption Church, Lawrence, and the Calvary Baptist Church in Haverhill are some of the church structures Mr. DiDio has built or rebuilt.

"The original building plans have changed because of material costs, but the external design for the church has remained the same," Mr. DiDio said. "I have been able to save the total budget $1 million." The original design from de Castro and Nelson, an award-winning firm, was for a $2.5 million brick and precast concrete structure. A redesign was accepted by the building committee for a wood and concrete, single-siding structure. The redesigned construction cost $1.5 million for the 20,000 square-foot structure.

"This church is built to the max," said Mr. DiDio. "Money is where it counts. The church has high quality heating and venting systems. The doors and hardware are quality. A 40-foot ceiling is in the worship space. The baptismal font is made of ceramic and concrete for the increased reverberation rate of sound for the pipe organ."

Many people have worked with Mr. DiDio as subcontractors. The Piquette and Howard Company is responsible for the electrical work. Climate Design Company of Haverhill has the responsibility for the heating, venting and plumbing for the church. Lynco Fire Protection of Burlington installed the sprinkler system. Desmond Nursery of Rowley is planting 240 shrubs to landscape the property.

Some building materials have been ordered from a number of states to enhance the beauty of the church. The windows in the worship space were made in Iowa. The steeple was shipped in sections from Campbellville, Ky. The pipe organ is being made by the Austin Organ Company of Hartford, Conn. Pews are being built in California. The heating and ventilation systems are made in Lexington, Ky., and Scranton, Pa.

Fifteen percent of the building space is given to safety measures with a check-and-balance system. The building meets the latest building codes with layered layers of sheetrock in the walls and with fresh air pumped through the church by two separate venting systems. The building is designed to accommodate the congregation of 329 adult baptized members, plus space for growth.

"The building will be accessible for the handicapped and could provide classroom space for the Atkinson School children," said Rev. Dickinson. "The classroom usage by North Andover students will have to be approved by placing the proposal on the town ballot. The vestry or fellowship room can be used by the public. This room will be named Friendship Hall, in honor of the community gifts that supported the building fund."

Rev. Dickinson became the senior pastor of the First Calvary Baptist Church in 1971. He attended Gordon College, which was in Boston at the time, and Gordon Divinity School, which was in Beverly Farms at the time. His pastorate was in Charlestown before he accepted the position in Lawrence. He is a resident of Andover and lives on Poor Street in the Shawshen area. The associate pastor is Charles Crook from New Bedford. He graduated from Andover-Newton Theological Seminary and lives in the house that was moved from one part of the property to another part there.

"We have been overwhelmed by the generosity and kindness of the Greater Lawrence community. We hope to be serving and giving to North Andover through this church. This giving is our way of saying, 'thank you,'" said Rev. Dickinson.

Mr. DiDio added, "This job is very satisfying. To build a church where people will worship gives personal satisfaction."

RECYCLING

1,414 button batteries collected in five months

By Virginia Cole

The button battery collection is moving along quite well. You now have all the collection places listed on your recycling calendar so refer to them and use them. Reasons for and directions how-to are there also. That's one more item out of the trash.

In the first five months of the program, 1,414 button batteries were collected; 398 mercuric oxide, 546 silver oxide and 166 lithium batteries. The balance were batteries that cannot yet be recycled.

The aim of this program is to improve the environment by recycling as much mercury, silver and lithium as possible. Potential air emissions and ash contamination at the North Andover incinerator are the immediate concerns of Andover people.

The jewelry stores in town were already participating in a collection system with the suppliers of their batteries. So actually, more batteries than those listed are being collected and, we believe, recycled.

Many are asking what about the larger batteries. The information available is that the mercury content in alkaline and carbon zinc batteries is decreasing significantly and will continue to decrease because mercury is no longer considered essential. And there are no recycling options available for those.

Last week's Townsmen gave information about recycling automobile batteries. The Sun-co station is the place.

Perhaps later stages of this program will expand to include more types of batteries.

Hanning strikes out eight Rangers AHS beats Chelmsford in snow, then Methuen

By Rick Harrison

Andover High ace lefthander Jim Hanning picked the right time to throw the Golden Warriors' first complete-game shutout of the season.

With University of Maine pitching Coach Jay Kimball and Black Bears' assistant Mike Coutts in attendance, Hanning fired bullets and goose-eggs at Methuen High in a 4-0 Patriots' Day victory.

Despite suffering from a touch of the flu, Hanning blanked the Rangers on four singles while striking out eight and walking only one.

He appeared to get stronger as the game progressed, retiring 12 straight Methuen batters from the third through the sixth before Dan Salois opened the seventh with the final Rangers' hit. Hanning then set down the next three men in order to make it 15 of the last 16 he faced.

He is already 4-0 this spring and in 20 overpowering innings has yielded just eight hits, two runs (both earned), walked just seven and fanned 36 for a blistering 1.8 per inning strikeout pace. Hanning's ERA is a minuscule 0.70.

Meanwhile, if the Andover High baseball team reaches the State Division 1 championship game again, and it starts to snow in mid-June, Coach Dave Bettencourt will have no trouble deciding which pitcher to use.

Justin Hesenius will be the only one on the staff with experience pitching in a snowstorm.

But even Ol' Man Winter couldn't slow the Golden Warriors express, as Hesenius struck out 14 between flakes and AHS cruised past Chelmsford 6-1 in a weather-shortened six-inning game last week.

Andover, 6-0 overall and 3-0 league after the victories over Chelmsford and Methuen, traveled to Haverhill yesterday and plays Central Catholic in Lawrence tomorrow afternoon (2 p.m.).

The Golden Warriors stretched their two-season win streak to 28 straight games, as they approach 1990 state Division 1 champ Milford's record of 33 consecutive victories. Andover is also 31-1 in its last 32 starts.

Hesenius, a junior righthander, improved his record to 2-0 with the Chelmsford victory. In his first 15 innings this spring Justin has allowed 15 hits while walking only four and striking out 24.

In 41 innings, through the Methuen game, the Warriors' pitching staff had combined to surrender only 26 hits and seven earned runs while walking 12 and whiffing 66.

Through the first six games Andover's team batting average was well over .300.

Chris Lembo leads the regulars in hitting with a .471 average, closely followed by Mike Daley at .467, Matt Daniels .429, Justin Hesenius .389, Josh Nelkin .375, Bob Sheehan .368 and Jim Hanning .364.

Daley and Hesenius shared the RBI lead with seven apiece, while Daley and Sheehan had scored eight runs apiece and Jim Landry seven.

Daley, Landry and Daniels had two doubles each. Hesenius three triples and Sheehan two, and home runs had been hit by Daley, Daniels and Hesenius.

Mike Daley, after a tough start, entered the Haverhill game with an interesting streak in progress. Mike had reached base 13 straight times (hits and walks) and 15 of his last 16 times at bat.

Andover, 6-1

In the top of the first at Chelmsford, before the snow started, Andover vaulted to a 3-0 lead with the help of three Lions' throwing errors.

Rock 'n roll band member Jim Landry led off the game with a walk against Chelmsford lefthander Tim Mahoney. He stole second, took third when the catcher's throw curved into right-centerfield, and scored on Bob Sheehan's long sacrifice fly to center.

Hesenius and Mike Daley followed with consecutive two-out, opposite-field singles to right. Daley stole second and another poor throw enabled Hesenius to trot home. When the centerfielder picked up the ball and threw wildly to third trying to get Daley, he also raced home with the third run.

The lone Chelmsford run came in the bottom of the inning when Phil Blanchard reached on a third strike wild pitch, and eventually scored on Jamie Worth's two-out single.

The Warriors added a run in the third as Landry beat out an infield hit, moved to second on sophomore Matt Wolcott's tapper to the mound, took third on Sheehan's infield groundout, and scored when Hesenius laced his second single to right field.

Mike Daley followed with his fifth straight hit over a two-game stretch, blooming a double to centerfield, but two runners were left in scoring position on a long flyball out by Chris Lembo.

In the fourth Matt Daniels, who will attend Phillips Exeter Academy as a post-graduate next fall before moving on to either UNH or Boston College, looped a two-strike double to shallow right field.

Josh Nelkin was hit by a pitch, Jim Hanning bunted both runners along, and Landry lofted a sacrifice

Recently four Andover girls qualified for the Level 5 U.S.G.F. state gymnastic meet to be held May 10 at Algonquin Regional High School in Northboro. Standing are Kate Upton, 10, of West Elementary School and Brittany Buckner, 10, of South School. Kneeling are Kristin Kearins, 9, and Kerri Krivelow, 10, both of Sanborn School. The girls are on the Merrimack Valley Gymnastic team in Methuen, coached by Sharon MacDonald. At least a 32 all-around was needed to qualify.

Basketball school dates set

The third annual Andover Boys Basketball School, directed by Andover High varsity Coach Dave Fazio, will run for two outstanding weeks July 13-17 and July 20-24.

The school, for boys ages seven to 17 years, will have daily sessions at Andover High from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Camp features include grouping by age and ability, guest speakers, individual video taping for instructional purposes, specialized instruction for guards and forwards, drill stations, individual evaluations, games, 1-on-1 contest, foul shooting contest, situation games, free camp T-shirt and special awards for the "Camper-of-the-Day."

"Each camper will be given instruction with the emphasis on hard work and sound fundamentals," said Coach Fazio. "We believe these are the key ingredients for any basketball player to improve his game. Our objective is to strive to make each camper a complete player.

"We will always bring in the best coaches available," added Fazio, "and their goal will be helping each camper improve his game."

Each camper is required to provide his own transportation and lunch.

Interested youngsters are encouraged to apply early because enrollment is limited.

The cost is $95 per week or $175 for both weeks.

Checks may be made payable to: Andover Basketball School, 106 Union Street, North Andover, Ma. 01845.

Anyone wishing further information should call Dave Fazio at (508) 683-1966.

Pony League tryout dates listed

The Andover Blue and Gold Pony League baseball teams, for youngsters ages 13-15 years, will hold their annual spring tryouts the weekend of May 2-3.

All 13-year-old candidates should report to the Andover High varsity field at 1 p.m. both days, while 14- and 15-year-olds should report at 3 p.m. both days.

If the turnout is large enough to warrant a third tryout, the date and time of that session will be announced on May 3.

Returning players who were on either of the two teams last summer are required to attend the tryouts.

To be eligible a youngster cannot reach his 16th birthday prior to August 1, 1992.

The Blue and Gold teams will again compete in the Suburban Pony League against teams from other towns in Eastern Massachusetts, including Reading, North Reading, Wilmington, Methuen, Lynnfield, Winthrop and Stoneham.

Andover has dominated the league since entering nine years ago, with the Gold winning the league title three times and the Blue four times. Only in 1990, when Gold ousted Blue in the playoff semifinals and then Methuen won a pair of one-run decisions over Gold in the title series, has Andover failed to win the league crown.

The two teams have also won their respective regular-season division championships almost every year.

Andover Gold also won three consecutive Greater-Lawrence League titles before the switch was made to the Suburban Pony League.

Approximately 90 per cent of the players on the Andover High varsity baseball team each year are graduates of the Blue and Gold. That figure held true on last spring's state Division 1 championship team, and only two players (both reserves) on this year's undefeated Andover High team did not play Pony League.

Head coaches once again will be Dan Grams (Gold) and Joe Iarrobino (Blue).

Andover has dominated the league since entering nine years ago.

Frosh's three-season win streak ends

By Rick Harrison

It took a freak mid-April snowstorm to finally end the Andover High freshman baseball team's three-season win streak at 28 straight games.

After rallying for eight runs with two out in the top of the seventh to stun Lowell 9-6 in the season opener, Coach Ken Maglio's team dropped a 5-4 decision to Chelmsford, Lady Luck and Mother Nature.

In that Chelmsford contest the Young Warriors carried a 4-3 lead into the seventh inning. But the snow contributed to a missed fly ball and a possible double play line drive getting through for an RBI double.

Andover had no miracle finish in its bag of tricks this game, and the winning streak went by the boards under some unfortunate circumstances.

However, a new one was started last Monday when the AHS frosh took out their frustrations on Methuen with a 23-5 Patriots' Day massacre.

The Young Warriors, 2-1 overall, return to action tomorrow when they are scheduled to host Central Catholic at the West Middle School diamond (2 p.m.).

Andover, 9-6

Winning pitcher Pat Walsh went the distance against Lowell at Shedd Park, yielding eight hits while striking out one and walking none.

He had a shutout going for the first four innings, Andover taking a 1-0 lead in the second when Jason Veilleux drew a two-out walk, Dave Charland singled, Veilleux stole third, and Mike Maguire ripped an RBI single.

Lowell rallied for three runs in the fifth and two in the sixth, carrying a seemingly-comfortable 5-1 lead into the seventh.

Mike Mano led off the Young Warriors' eight-run explosion with an opposite-field double down the right field line. Charland ripped a one-out single to left, and Nate Roberts drew a two-out walk to load the bases.

Lowell touched Walsh for its final run in the bottom of the seventh, but it wasn't enough.

Marshall, Charland and Maguire had two hits apiece for Andover.

Defensively Ryan Moynihan was a standout at second base and Maguire made a nice running over-the-shoulder grab in left field.

Chelmsford, 5-4

Andover was missing three starters for this game, two who left on vacation and another because of scholastic difficulties.

Righthander Nate Roberts pitched 6.1 strong innings for the Young Warriors, yielding seven hits, fanning one and walking one.

Rangy 6'3" lefthander Chris Brown relieved in the seventh and put out the fire, striking out the two batters he faced after the damage had been done.

Chelmsford snapped a scoreless tie with three runs in the top of the fourth, but in typical cat-scratch fashion the AHS frosh rallied for four runs and the lead in the bottom of the fifth.

Roberts opened that stanza with a single, Dave Charland walked, and RBI singles by Ryan Moynihan and Dan Hansberry trimmed the deficit to 3-2.

Paul Cassidy plated Moynihan with a suicide squeeze bunt to tie it 3-3, and Jeff Pothier followed with another perfect suicide squeeze to chase home Hansberry

Chelmsford scored its two unearned runs in the seventh after Roberts retired the first batter. An outfield error put a runner aboard, and then a line drive to third base was lost among the snowflakes and went for an RBI double instead of a possible doubleplay.

The winning run crossed after a walk, a steal of third base and a wild throw into left field on the steal.

Andover, 23-5

Tom Tanin and Pat Walsh put together monster games offensively to power the Young Warriors past Methuen at the Pelham Street field.

Tanin was a perfect 4-for-4, including an over-the-fence home run that traveled an estimated 350 feet, and he also scored five runs and finished with seven RBI.

Walsh wasn't far behind with 5-for-6 including a triple, double, three singles, and four RBI.

Dave Charland's only hit was a double, but he also walked twice, reached base twice on errors, and scored five runs.

Andover broke a 2-2 tie with one run in the third, then shifted into high gear for seven runs in the fourth, three in the fifth and 10 runs in the top of the seventh.

Pat Walsh (2-0) pitched the first four innings and Chris Brown the final three. The pair combined for an eight-hitter, walking three and whiffing six.

Ryan Moynihan contributed three singles, Peter Daniels and Paul Cassidy hammered a double and single apiece, and Danny Hansberry clubbed a double.

The winners paraded 11 batters to the plate in the fourth and 14 in the seventh.

The defense was also crisp with shortstop Tanin, second baseman Moynihan and first baseman Walsh pulling off a 6-4-3 doubleplay late in the game.

AHS softball team suffers setback

By Rick Harrison

Unable to sustain any momentum from its impressive 3-2 victory over Haverhill, the Andover High softball team fell back into the offensive doldrums on route to an 8-1 loss to Methuen recently.

The setback was the third in four games for the Lady Warriors, who managed only nine runs in those four contests.

Coach Ken Pellerin's crew tried to get its attack in gear earlier this week at Tewksbury, and the locals now have three games in the next five days. Andover hosts Billerica today (2 p.m.), entertains non-league rival North Andover tomorrow (2 p.m.), and travels to Lawrence next Monday afternoon (3:30 p.m.).

Methuen, 8-1

The Lady Warriors did manage seven hits off Rangers' complete-game winner Amy Piccirillo, but they couldn't string anything together.

Junior designated hitter Marcia Gemmell laced two safeties and scored the only AHS run in the sixth, while senior Tri-Captain Meghan Mueller and junior Lindsey Sweeney also had a pair of base hits apiece.

Lefthander Sweeney pitched a strong game and trailed only 3-1 entering the seventh inning, at which point Methuen rallied for five insurance runs to put the victory away.

Charlene Blair led the 11-hit Methuen barrage with a double, single and three RBI, while leadoff batter Michelle Daigle and Nicole Traficante added two hits each. Eight of the nine Methuen starters hit safely.

The Lady Warriors did manage seven hits off Rangers' complete-game winner Amy Piccirillo, but they couldn't string anything together.

Andover, 3-2

Lindsey Sweeney fired a three-hitter and gunned down the potential tying run at the plate in the bottom of the seventh, as the Lady Warriors broke into the win column with this dramatic triumph over Haverhill.

The Hillies, undefeated entering the contest, inched ahead 1-0 in the first before visiting Andover struck for a pair of runs in the second and the eventual game-winner in the top of the third stanza.

Meghan Mueller, Melissa McNamara and sophomore DH Andrea Marino scored the runs, and they also combined to produce the only four AHS hits off tough-luck loser Sheri Martino.

Marcia Gemmell and Marino collected RBI.

In the second McNamara and Marino laid down back-to-back bunt singles, pulled off a double steal, and then scored on Gemmell's infield out and a wild pitch by Martino.

Martino fanned 14 and Sweeney countered with eight strikeouts, as the winners entered the bottom of the seventh riding a 3-1 advantage.

Sweeney, who had surrendered just one hit through the first six innings, yielded consecutive singles to Haverhill freshman Courtney Gagnon and Martino to open the stanza.

As Gagnon raced to third base on Martino's hit, the throw from the Andover outfield hit her and caromed back into shallow left field.

Gagnon scored the second run easily, and Martino circled third and headed for home with the tying run.

Sweeney alertly backed up the play, however, and fired a strike to veteran catcher Julie DiIegro who slapped the tag on Martino for the first out.

Sweeney then mowed down the next two hitters to preserve the exciting win. Melissa McNamara led the way with two hits for Andover.

Haverhill basketball star Keri Guertin, who is also a pesky leadoff batter for the softball team, scored the first Hillies' run.

Tennis teams continue quest for eighth MVC championship

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High boys' and girls' tennis teams, operating on automatic pilot, romped to 5-0 victories over Methuen to remain tied for first place in their quest to sweep both Merrimack Valley Conference championships for the eighth straight year.

The AHS boys improved to 4-0 overall, sharing the conference lead with Chelmsford, while the girls are 3-0 and atop the standings with likewise unbeaten Lowell and Chelmsford.

The anticipated double showdown against Chelmsford is scheduled next Wednesday, April 29, on the Lions' courts with Lowell to follow at home on Friday, May 1.

The Lady Warriors traveled to Tewksbury earlier this week, while the boys had a bye because Tewksbury has no male tennis team.

Andover hosted Billerica this morning at the high school courts, and next Monday Lawrence High will provide the opposition.

Coach Mike Wartman's Andover boys are now 111-7 in the last 118 league matches and 132-14 overall in the last 146 matches.

Coach Tony Russo's Lady Warriors have won 93 of their last 94 in the MVC and are 99-6 including tournament play in their last 105.

Andover boys

The singles' lineup remained the same for the fourth straight match as senior Co-Captain Paul Bernardin, junior Eric Block and sophomore Dan Queen all improved to 4-0 with straight-set victories over Methuen.

No. 1 Bernardin whipped Kevin Ricci 6-1, 6-0, while No. 2 Block and No. 3 Queen both whitewashed the Rangers' Joe Bretton and Bjong Han 6-0, 6-0.

In doubles, juniors Eric Dahlstrand and John Faldetta teamed for the first time and destroyed Steve DeSimone and Chris White 6-1, 6-0.

At second doubles the first-time tandem of junior Andy Cohen and senior Rich Yost trimmed Chris Riccio and Rich Ouellette 7-6 (7-2), 6-0.

Andover girls

Sophomore No. 1 Alison Georgian improved to 3-0 this year and 12-1 the past two seasons in MVC matches, whipping Methuen's Tracy Sunderland 6-0, 6-1.

Senior Co-Captain Kim Heller returned to the No. 2 spot and handled Lisa Metropolis 6-1, 6-2, while senior Ari Boutin stepped in at No. 3 singles and annihilated Kerry Williams 6-0, 6-1.

The undefeated top doubles' tandem of juniors Julie Doherty and Beth Everett rolled to their third straight win, a 6-0, 6-0 blitz of the Rangers' Jill Packard and Jen Kuchar.

Junior Rachel Roberts and Laura Cavicchi were first-time varsity partners at No. 2 doubles, and they responded by dropping just four games in a 6-1, 6-3 waltz past Methuen's Elaine Samaris and Nicki White.

fly rescuing Daniels.

The final Andover run came in the sixth when Lembo legged out an infield hit, took second on Matt Daniels' sacrifice, and scored on Nelkin's double to center field.

Hesenius and Daley led the nine-hit attack with two safeties apiece.

Justine struck out at least one Chelmsford batter in every inning, fanned the side in the first and fourth frames, and struck out four batters in the fifth.

In that unusual fifth stanza the first batter popped out to Sheehan at short, the next batter fanned, the next two hitters both struck out but reached base when the third strike eluded catcher Matt Daniels. Hesenius then walked the next hitter on a 3-2 pitch to load the bases, and recorded his fourth whiff when Worth went down on four pitches.

He had a chance to strike out four in the first inning as well, but settled for three K's and a flyout to left fielder Wolcott.

Although laying back on one ball which became an infield hit, shortstop Bob Sheehan made two other solid plays to spark a defense that primarily just relaxed and watched Hesenius blow Chelmsford away.

Andover, 4-0

Methuen and starting pitcher Paul Trident hung tough on Patriots' Day.

Jim Hanning, who collected his eight strikeouts in quiet fashion, was only in trouble twice.

In the first inning the Rangers had back-to-back one-out singles by Trident and Joel Coppetta, but a diving stop of Dan Salois's sharp grounder by first baseman Mike Daley saved a run before Hanning fanned the next batter to end the threat.

In the second stanza a two-out walk and single put runners aboard at first and second, but Hanning cleverly picked the man off first with a full 3-2 count on the next batter.

After extricating himself from that jam the talented southpaw cruised.

The only run necessary came in the bottom of the first when Bob Sheehan reached second base on a two-out infield hit and throwing error, Justin Hesenius walked and red-hot Mike Daley angled an RBI double down the right field line.

AHS had two aboard in the second session on successive walks to junior second baseman Josh Nelkin and Hanning, and in the third they loaded the bases when Daley walked, Chris Lembo singled to right and Matt Daniels reached on an error with two down.

In both instances Trident was able to survive as the score remained 1-0.

In the fifth Trident's own wildness proved his downfall. He walked Daley with one away, and with two outs issued consecutive walks to Daniels, Nelkin and Hanning (RBI) with the bases loaded. Matt Daniels later crossed with the third run on a wild pitch.

The final Warriors' tally came in the sixth when Matt Wolcott beat out an infield roller, stole second, took third on Sheehan's infield out, and scored when sophomore Paul Allard dropped a textbook suicide squeeze bunt as Wolcott raced home.

Mike Daley reached base four more times with a double and three walks.

Dan Lennon, a sophomore at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., earned his second varsity letter in diving, head coach John Ryan announced recently.

The Cardinals' top board man throughout the 1991-92 season, he capped off his year with an outstanding performance at the New England Division III championships. Lennon placed third in the one-meter event and fifth in the three-meter event while setting school records in each with scores of 394.7 points and 361.65 points, respectively.

The 1991-92 men's swimming and diving season at Wesleyan ranked as one of the finest in the team's long history. Equaling the best dual-meet record ever posted at Wesleyan with a 91 mark, the Cardinals placed fifth of 20 teams in the New England Division III championships, the highest finish ever by a Wesleyan team in the New England

The son of Richard and Eileen Lennon of Bradley Road is a 1990 graduate of Phillips Academy where he earned four varsity letters as a diver and set the school's one-meter diving record before graduating.

Under 14 Division

Andover Raiders 2 - Methuen Volcanoes 1

Andover's offense dominated the game. Late in the first half Saun Connors split the defense with a pass to Andrew Turco who jammed the ball into the net. In the second half Phil DiBlasi found Saun positioned in front of the goal. Saun drove the ball past the goalie for Andover's second goal. Andover continued their dominance and walked away with the 2-1 win.

Booter of the week: Justin McLean and Matthew Muench.

Golden Lions 3 - Boxford Bengals 1

The Lions used strong passing and team defense to win this game. Robby Busby opened scoring midway in the first half. Dan Kulp penetrated the penalty box and passed to David Holmes who passed to Greg Thompson who hit Busby at the far post. Five minutes later Jamie Howard drew defenders to the near post and passed to Greg Thompson who netted the ball. Midway in the second half, Mike Monteiro drove the left side with some nice footwork and beat the keeper to the near post.

Vanessa Scarbeau, Abby Harris, Jen Murnane and Randi Spiegel mounted some fine plays that were thwarted by Boxford's defense. Abby Harris and Vanessa Blank combined for the tying goal. Sue Cookson played outstanding defense, impeding Boxford numerous times with her speed and slide-tackles.

Eagle-Tribune runner-up in Pulitzer voting

The Eagle-Tribune and its sports editor, Russ Conway, came within a whisker of winning a Pulitzer Prize yesterday.

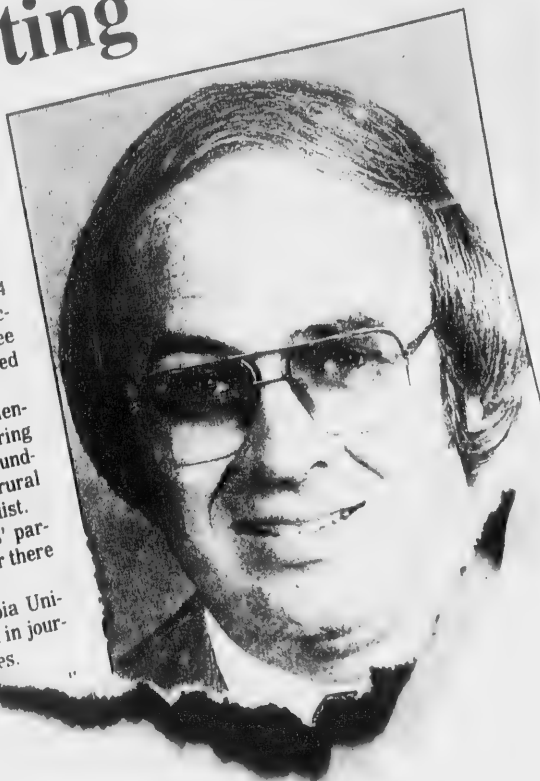

It would have been the second Pulitzer for The Eagle-Tribune in four years. Most newspapers never win any.

A series of articles by Mr. Conway exposing 24 years of secret deals and questionable business practices in the National Hockey League was one of three finalists in the Pulitzer judging for distinguished beat reporting.

Science reporter Deborah Blum of the Sacramento (Calif.) Bee won the prize for a series exploring complex ethical and moral questions surrounding intimate research. A series about faltering rural care in Arkansas was also named a finalist.

The category recognizes work in reporters' particular areas of expertise — or beats. This year there warded by Columbia University in recognition in journals.

AFTER WINNING A PULITZER FOUR YEARS AGO, WE WENT BACK FOR SECONDS.

When you're hungry to do good work, it shows. In 1988, we won our first Pulitzer Prize—an honor most newspapers never receive. This year, we almost did it again: our sports editor Russ Conway's investigative series on the National Hockey League, entitled "Cracking the Ice," finished second in the Pulitzer judging for distinguished beat reporting. The Eagle-Tribune was also recently voted Newspaper of the Year for 1991 by the New England Newspaper Association—among other awards. We're flattered, of course.

But our goal has always been simply to satisfy our readers' appetite for the best news coverage.

Andover High track: Dick Collins won't make predictions, but likes what he sees

By Rick Harrison

Veteran Andover High track Coach Dick Collins has never been one to make rash predictions.

Thirty-three years of experience have taught the Hall of Famer to temper his enthusiasm.

But he likes what he has seen thus far from his boys' team, which won the Haverhill Invitational two weeks ago and improved to 2-0-0 in dual meets last week with an 87-53 romp over Merrimack Valley Conference rival Tewksbury.

When you get to the bigger meets it is usually quality, rather than quantity, that makes a winner.

And the Golden Warriors have enough quality athletes, led by Steve Shepard and Jason McCue, to make some definite noise in late May and early June.

"McCue and Shepard are genuine State and New England class competitors," said Collins, who has coached a number of individual and team champions at both those levels. "If they stay healthy we could ride a long way on those two guys."

Take that talented pair in their individual events, mix in Matt Harris and Jamie Damon for the 4x100 meter sprint relay team, and the possibilities are endless.

"That will be a very interesting group in the relay," said Collins. "We won't run them together very much until the big meets at the end of the season. But if they click on all their passes (baton handoffs) they will be extremely tough to beat."

"We've won State and New England titles on two kids and a relay team before," added Collins. "And that's what we have this year."

That's as close to a prediction as Collins will come.

On the girls' side, although the Lady Warriors fell to 0-2-0 with another tough 70-61 loss to Tewksbury, Collins is not discouraged or disappointed.

Andover has yet to face an MVC Large School opponent, so the division championship is still very much within reach.

A second place finish (to Tewksbury) in last weekend's 17-school Wilmington Invitational was also encouraging, and AHS might have won the meet had its 4x100 sprint relay team not been disqualified.

"Most of the girls' team will be back next year," said Collins. "So far we've met what I consider the two best girls' teams in the league (Tewksbury, Methuen) and gone down to the wire with both. We're a very good team and we're going to improve as the season goes along."

In dual meet action against Tewksbury last week, a commanding 46-17 edge in the seven field events including sweeps of the shot put, discus and a 1-2 finish in the javelin, made up the bulk of the point spread as the powerful Andover boys' romped to the 87-53 triumph at the Eugene V. Lovely oval.

It was considerably closer between the MVC inter-division rivals in the running events, where Andover managed a slim 41-36 advantage.

Steve Shepard

While the boys were winning their second straight, the Andover girls were victimized by Tewksbury triple threat Mary Brady in their 70-61 loss.

Brady won three events (100 meters, 200 meters, long jump) as Tewksbury beat the Lady Warriors for the first time since 1984.

Andover returned to the dual meet was yesterday morning at Billerica, marking the first MVC Large School Division meet of the spring.

Saturday morning AHS will host the annual State Class B Relays at the Lovely oval (9:30 a.m.).

"The Relays are always a great meet with plenty of action going almost the entire day," said Collins. "Last year we had great weather, and if that's the case again we could have some great performances."

Next Wednesday afternoon Andover hosts Chelmsford (3:30 p.m.).

Andover boys

Steve Shepard and Jason McCue accounted for half the first place finishes by the undefeated Warriors, combining for five of the 10 victories against a Tewksbury team expected to challenge for the MVC Small School title this spring.

Shepard again was a triple winner in the long jump (20'3"), triple jump (41'9") and 300-meter intermediate hurdles (40.1).

Shepard's performance in the hurdles pushed Tewksbury runner-up Ryan McNeil, who is expected to win three events in several meets himself this season, to a new school record in the event.

McCue, who owns the 110-meter hurdles and also relegated McNeil to second place, won that race in 15.3 and also captured the 200 meter dash in a swift 23.4.

Other individual winners for the Golden Warriors were J.P. Ciruso with a personal-best toss in the shot put (44'5"), Bob Dalton in the discus (113'10"). Barrett Elliot with a personal-best in the javelin (153'6") and Captain Jamie Damon in the 100 meters (11.5).

The final AHS victory came from the 4x100 meter sprint relay quartet of Brian Croteau, Matt Harris, Rob Weisman and Damon in 46.3.

Completing the underclassmen's sweep of the shot were juniors Sean O'Leary (40'10") and Brian Adams (37'11"), while 2.3 in the discus went to Phil Smith (110'6") and O'Leary (103'4").

Todd Allard was second in the javelin (145'0"), one of the few times he has taken a back seat in the last two years, and other runnersup were junior high jumper Andy Leinson (5'10", second on misses), senior pole vaulter Dan Wrigley (10'6"), sprinter Matt Harris (100 meters, 11.7), junior Colin Arsenault in the difficult 800 meter run (2:09), miler Jeremy Roux (5:03) and freshman two-miler Mark Adams (10:53).

"Arsenault had an excellent race, running with the Tewksbury kid until the last 50 yards," said Collins. The winning time was 2:08.

Andover earned 10 of a possible 15 third place finishes. John Hess taking two of them in the long jump (19'5") and triple jump (39'2").

"John's father was quite a trackman for us," said Collins. "The year after he moved into town he broke Bill Doherty's school record in the long jump, and he held it until Leon Sharpe broke it several years later."

Other thirds went to junior high jumper Mike O'Sullivan (5'8"), junior pole vaulter Alan Guibord (10'6", third on misses), sprinter Peter Murphy (200 meters, 24.7), Captain Mike Gialmo (400 meters, 56.0), freshman Matt Ely (800 meters, 2:11) and freshman two-miler Chad Collins (10:58).

Andover girls

The Lady Warriors managed only four victories in 15 events, and not even 11 seconds and eight thirds could make up the difference.

Individual winners were Co-Captain Holly Clark, Miss Automatic in the 300-meter hurdles with a 49.0 clocking, sophomore Sarah Witman in the 400 meter dash (64.0) and junior Nicole Kelley who tossed the shot put 28'4."

The 4x100 meter sprint relay crew of Amy Levesque, Alex Wendt, Christine Donovan and Captain Jill Ippolito also romped home in 52.9.

Ippolito placed second to nemesis Mary Brady in both the long jump (16'7") and 100 meter dash (12.8).

Senior Kasie Kearins scored in two events with a second in the 100-meter high hurdles (17.8) and third in the triple jump (31'1"), as did senior Catherine Cornell with thirds in the 100 meter hurdles (18.0) and high jump (4'2").

Other AHS seconds were taken by junior Jamie Lynch (discus, 72'10"), junior Kerry Hagerty (javelin, 97'2"), sophomore Stacey Lavoie (triple jump, 33'10"), junior miler Amanda Holmes (6:03), junior two-miler Ellen Sullivan (12:45), Amy Levesque (200 meters, 29.0), Captain Layne Whitley (400 meters, 64.5) and Leigh Clarke (800 meters, 2:38).

Placing third were junior shot putter Melissa Rao (25'5"), Williams (javelin), high jumper Amanda Verreault (4'2") who tied teammate Cornell, Alex Wendt (100 meters, 12.9) and Grace Perry (300-meter hurdles, 52.9).

Mary Brady scored 15 points for the Redgals with firsts in the long jump 17'1"), 100 meter dash (12.6) and 200 meter dash (26.7).

"We had a tough break in the 100-meter hurdles," said Collins. "Stacey Lavoie was leading when she hit the final hurdle and fell. But we still couldn't have won the meet. If Stacey had won that race, and we had run the mile relay and won it, we still would have lost by one point (68-67)."

Wilmington Invitational

Andover piled up 73 points and had three winners en route to its second place finish.

Tewksbury earned the team title with 85 points, and rounding out the MVC-dominated top five were third-place Reading with 65, fourth-place Billerica 42 and fifth-place Haverhill 40.

The Lady Warriors were second to Shrewsbury High in this meet last year, but have won the team championship several times in the past.

Individual winners for AHS were undefeated Holly Clark in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles (48.3), and Stacey Lavoie who bounced back from the dual meet tumble to run a personal-best 16.2 in the 100-meter hurdles.

"Stacey is going to be a great one," said Collins. "Her time, considering the less-than-ideal weather conditions, was exceptional."

Layne Whitley grabbed the only Andover second place in the long jump (15'6").

Jill Ippolito placed in two events, taking third in the 100 meter dash (13.0) and fourth in the long jump (15'2").

Also finishing third for the Lady Warriors were Kasie Kearins in the 100-meter hurdles (17.0), Lavoie in the triple jump (32'9"), and the 4x440 (mile) relay quartet of Holly Clark, Stacey Lavoie, Sarah Witman and Layne Whitley (4:15.0).

Witman was also fourth (28.3) and Alex Wendt fifth (28.4) in the 220 yard dash. Wendt ran a swift 27.6 in the trials, and that was just one-tenth of a second above the winning time of 27.5 run by Billerica's Amy DeGironimo in the finals.

Sophomore Amanda Grasso rounded out the Andover scorers with a sixth in the two-mile (13:10).

The 4x100 sprint relay team, favored to win that event, was disqualified when a dropped pass led to a lane violation.

"We definitely blew the pass. No argument," said Collins. "Disqualifications are part of the game."

The DQ didn't cost Andover the meet because Tewksbury didn't score in the event. However, had the Lady Warriors won the race the final Tewksbury victory margin would have been just two points (85-83) instead of 12.

South Church announces 3.1-mile fun run and walk

South Church announces its first annual Steeple Chase, a 3.1 kilometer (3.1 mile) road race, fun run and walk combined, will be held Saturday, June 20. All the proceeds from entry fees will be used to help restore the South Church steeple.

The male and female overall winners will receive trophies as will the winners in each age division (17 and under, 18-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59, and over 60). Second and third finishers overall and in each age category will also receive awards. Everyone who completes the course will receive a certificate.

Because the race is taking place the day before Father's Day, a special feature will be trophies for the winners of the father-son and father-daughter combined time event.

Breakfast will be available in South Church after the race for a reasonable price. The race organizers hope that families will come and make an early morning run or walk, enjoy breakfast in the church and then head for Bazaar Day on Main Street.

Volleyball team started fast then faded ...

By Rick Harrison

It was not the way Coach George Sullivan wanted to head into a two-week break in the schedule, but the Andover High boys' volleyball team started fast and then faded in the stretch en route to a 2-0 loss to Billerica recently.

The Indians, 5-1, overcame a strong AHS opening surge to win the first game, 15-10, and then rolled to a 15-5 victory in the second game on the Dunn Gymnasium court.

It marked the first time in 22 matches, since the regular season opener last year against Milford, that Andover had been shut out.

The setback snapped a two-match win streak for the two-time defending Eastern Mass. League North Division champions, leaving them with a 2-3 overall record.

The Golden Warrior netmen will remain idle until next Tuesday, when they travel to Chelmsford (3:30 p.m.), and Wednesday they will host Catholic Memorial of West Roxbury (3:30).

"We wanted to play some matches over school vacation," noted Coach Sullivan, "but we couldn't find any opponents.

"To keep from getting stale (by just practicing) I gave the kids a few days off. But I handled them each a jump rope and told them to stay in shape. We'll come back Wednesday (yesterday) and practice through Friday or Saturday.

Hitting stone wall

"Against Billerica we opened the first game hitting well, setting well and scrambling all over the floor on defense," said Coach Sullivan. "We were ahead 7-2 and then 10-5."

But the locals hit a stone wall at 10-5, as Billerica reeled off the next 10 points to win the game going away.

"We never got it into gear the second game," lamented Sullivan. "The kids gave every thing they had the first game and it wasn't enough. They just had nothing left."

Billerica bolted to a quick 7-0 lead in Game 2 and coasted from that point.

"But I saw improvement. Billerica is a better team than we are right now. If we'd played the same way against Methuen and Cambridge we would have won those matches."

"We're still not strong at the '4' position," explained Coach Sullivan. "That's the spot where your top hitter plays. In the past we've had a John Thompson or a Jeff Foley to slam the ball down the other team's throat. We don't have that threat this year."

At least not yet.

"We'll try some different people in that position this week in practice and see what happens," said Sullivan.

Top hitters against Billerica were Chris Shea and Kevin Ring, while senior Tim Maracle continues to play well at the setter position in the 5-1 alignment.

Coach Sullivan is also pleased with the progress of senior lefty Matt Jennings, a right side hitter who starred on Andover's championship boys' swim team last winter.

Junior Matt Reghitto and John Formichella have also been elevated to varsity status, the former full-time and the latter still splitting time with the varsity and JV teams.

Andover JVs

The Golden Warriors' junior varsity remained undefeated (5-0) with its fifth straight 2-0 sweep, subduing Billerica 15-10, 15-13 in a competitive match.

Leading the way for Andover were freshmen Sean Croteau and Tim Foley, sophomore J.J. McCormick who had a strong second game, and John Formichella.

Liz Walker to speak in Lawrence May 9 on violence in the home

WBZ Channel 4 news anchor, Liz Walker will discuss the media's responsibility in domestic violence issues at a conference on violence in the home.

Family Violence: A Nation Afflicted is scheduled for Saturday, May 9, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Frost School, 33 Hamlet St., Lawrence. The conference will explore the issues and problems surrounding family violence and potential solutions.

Designed for attorneys, judges, court personnel, school department employees and human services representatives, the conference will include topical discussions, a legal panel and two sets of small workshops.

"The program is topic specific, but audience diverse," said WRC staff attorney Linda Harvey, conference coordinator. "It is designed to deal with clinical and advocacy issues."

Speakers will also include state representatives, judges, lawyers, police, psychologists, historians and others working with domestic violence issues.

The cost for the conference, including lunch, is $35 per person. Some scholarships are available for eligible applicants. Day care will also be provided at an additional cost.

The conference is sponsored by the Legal Access Project, a cooperative effort of the Women's Resource Center and the Merrimack Valley Legal Services, and funded by the Massachusetts Bar Association.

To register or for more information, call WRC at 685-2480.

Center plans 'Walk for Women's Safety'

The second annual "Walk for Women's Safety" will step off from Pemberton State Park in Lawrence Sunday, May 17.

Sponsored by the Women's Resource Center of Lawrence and Haverhill, the five-mile walk-a-thon is designed to increase community awareness and raise much-needed funds to support domestic violence programs.

This year's walk is dedicated to Delfina DeLeon, a mother of three who was shot to death by her estranged common-law husband, Juan Torres, on April 5. He also killed two teen-agers that same morning.

"Domestic Violence is a national epidemic," said Bobbie Ahouse, fundraising coordinator. Walkers will check-in between 8:30 and 9 a.m. at Pemberton State Park, next to the WRC Lawrence office, 454 N. Canal St.

The walk will begin promptly at 10:15 a.m. and will pass many historic sites, including the old textile mills.

To sign up for the walk or for more information, call Ms. Ahouse at 685-2480, or Laura McKellar, public relations coordinator, 373-6703.

Here are books for the visually impaired

The library of large print books at the Lowell Association for the Blind received a recent contribution from the Chelmsford Public Library system, and now has more than 200 volumes available for people with visual impairments.

Cynthia Reed, the association's program coordinator, has established a procedure for people to take the books to read at home or come into the offices at 174 Central St. in Lowell and read, using low vision television equipment.

Ms. Reed said that the Center for the Blind and Visually Impaired has two optelec CCTVs and a similar telesensory device that enlarges print on either a 14-inch television screen or a 21-inch screen. The new association offices have a comfortable area for reading, special lighting and a small private conference room for discussion.

The library of large print books includes novels, biographies, mysteries and a complete Bible on tape.

The association also has an Optacon available. The reader scans the printed page and the Optacon produces raised letters using metal pins. There are also some reading materials available in Braille.

Anyone interested in the library of large print books can call the association office at 454-5704.

Working with fairies

the island four years ago, she talked to a few native, year-round residents of the rustic island. Most of the people who live there are fishermen and their families. The families depend on generators for electricity. Most of the summer residences on the island and the few inns and summer cottages don't have electricity, she said.

"One woman I spoke to, who must have been in her 40s, said there have always been fairy houses on the island," she said.

Some people build bird houses. But residents and tourists on Monhegan Island build fairy houses with their children each summer, Ms. McCormick said. Families spend hours building the houses in the island's pine forest, she said.

"It was really a magical feeling walking in the Cathedral of Pines and spying all those little houses made out of branches and pine cones. It made me feel like a little kid when you could imagine little people living in them," Ms. McCormick said.

There are some unwritten rules about building the houses, she said. A person cannot disturb nature to build them. A person must use materials found on the forest floor, such as broken branches, pine cones or pieces of fallen bark.

"This same woman told me a story about how the fairy house location came to be exclusively within the boundaries of the island's Cathedral Pine Forest. She said for a while people were building them in closer to town. Every now and then people would find fairy houses on their front lawn," Ms. McCormick said.

"People would joke about going to bed at night and the sounds of fairy tractors keeping them up at night," she said.

The Monhegan Island fairy houses are the topic of a book Ms. McCormick has made from start to finish by hand. She hasn't published it; there is just one book. In 1985 she took a year off from teaching and she and her daughter, Amy, now 24, spent a year in England where Ms. McCormick learned the art of paper and bookmaking.

"I've always been interested in calligraphy and books. England is the center for bookmaking in Europe. While I was there I took classes in calligraphy, jewelry making, book making and paper making," she said.

At the time she went to Monhegan Island, Ms. McCormick was looking for topics to create a handmade book. In addition to taking many photographs of the fairy houses, she also collected pine needles and other forest memorabilia from the island that she later used in making the paper for her book.

One of the techniques she used in making the fairy houses book was to take a color Xerox of the fairy house photographs and then use color pencils to draw in the fairies she imagined would live in the houses. Ms.

It's the 4th annual Faerie Festival

Andover will host one of three fairy festivals nationwide this May. The Andover Faerie Festival, held at Betsy Williams' The Proper Season, 68 Park St., Saturday May 2, 10 a.m.-4 p.m., is the fourth annual festival in town and the original fairy festival after which the Texas and Pennsylvania festivals are fashioned.

Andover artist Fran McCormick will teach classes in fairy house building.

"The Faerie Festival is like May Day celebrations," said Ms. McCormick. "It ushers in the spring."

Pat Batson, another Andover resident, will teach classes in miniature furniture making. She will use twigs and other natural materials to construct the furniture.

Susan Lenoe of Andover, David Rodger of Andover Books & Prints, and former Andover resident Joe Gaudel will tell stories about the mythical mini mischief makers. California author Sharon Lovejoy will sign copies of her book, Sunflower Houses, Garden Discoveries for Children of All Ages.

Refreshments from Lane's End, also on Park Street, will be sold. Judy Camber of Andover will sing.

Everyone who attends the Faerie Festival will take home a flower and a miniature fairy cake.

McCormick also wrote the accompanying poetry in the book.

"Color Xeroxes are really the latest thing. I felt a little funny about using a copy since I wanted the book to be all my creation, but I think I like the finished product," she said.

Ms. McCormick moved to Andover in 1969. Before that she and her family lived in Lawrence, but spent summers at the family's camp in Andover off Wildwood Road. She said the fairy houses on Monhegan, built by both youngsters and those young at heart, reminded her a lot of the simple pleasures being outdoors can bring.

"The year I had in England really helped me refocus what I wanted to do with my art work. When you're teaching, you don't really have the time to do your own work," she said.

"My husband died in 1983 and at the time I went to England, my son, Patrick, now 26, was taking a semester in Rome and I was hoping to visit him while he was there. The timing just seemed right," she said.

Book making doesn't have to be a flat, two-dimensional endeavor, said Ms. McCormick, who began her career in art as a sculptress.

"Back in the '60s, one of the first jobs I did was sculpt the stations of the cross." That now hangs in a convent, she said.

Some of the books Ms. McCormick has made are round, such as the one of her niece doing cartwheels. Each round page is one movement of the little girl as she completes the maneuver. When the accordion-like pages are opened, the viewer can see the girl doing the complete cartwheel.

Jiffy Lube offers quick oil changes and other services

Jiffy Lube of Greater Lowell has been serving the Merrimack Valley for six years with the same management team and under the same ownership. The franchise, NTL-Lubrications Inc., is an Andover-based company. Their facility on Middlesex Street in Lowell was the first quick lube in the Merrimack Valley. Its newest facility on Route 38 in Lowell has been in operation for two years. The Route 38 facility is only seven miles from Andover Center and is only 1/2 mile from Route 495.

In addition to oil change services, the Lowell-area Jiffy Lube also performs radiator system antifreeze services, transmission fluid and filter services, and air-conditioning evacuation and recharge services.

A newly installed "Point of Sale" computer system at each store is now able to keep track of each customer's maintenance history at Jiffy Lube, advise as to manufacturer's recommendations on fluid services and service bulletins that apply to specific cars and select the proper fluid and filter applications. Each invoice prints complete service history.

Jiffy Lube is the oldest and largest quick lube franchise operation in America and is owned by Pennzoil Co. These facilities use Pennzoil fluids and FRAM filter products. All technicians are certified by Jiffy Lube through an examination program and all facility managers are school trained.

Registry issues five-year licenses

The Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles is now issuing five-year new and renewal licenses. According to Registrar of Motor Vehicles Jerold A. Gnazzo, the new policy of extending driver's licenses from four to five years would dramatically reduce the number of people going to the registry to renew their license. "With the extension of licenses from four years to five years we anticipate 200,000 or more fewer people going to registry offices which should result in shorter lines at the registry counters."

Massachusetts is not alone in extending new and renewal licenses for five years. At the present, seven states have begun to issue five-year licenses. The change took effect November 1, 1991.

The annual fees will remain unchanged. For example, the automobile driver's license fee for four years is $35.00 or $8.75 per year. The addition of one year will be $8.75.

Stay with car until help arrives

Drivers who experience highway breakdowns should remain with their vehicles until help arrives, regardless of the time of day. That's the opinion of the nation's state police and safety departments, who were recently surveyed by the Shell Motorist Club (SMC).

A majority of state police departments now believe it is no longer safe for male or female drivers to leave their disabled vehicles to seek help. From officials' recommendations, SMC has compiled the following steps for drivers who experience highway breakdowns:

- Move vehicle well off roadway to safety.
- Activate emergency flashers.
- Get out of vehicle on passenger side before raising the hood to indicate distress.
- Tie a white cloth to door handle or antenna.
- Place a "Send Help" sign in the back window.
- Stay with vehicle and when inside, keep seat belt fastened, doors locked, windows partially opened and wait for help.

Commonwealth Motors welcomes Miss America

Just a couple of weeks ago Miss America visited Commonwealth Motors. Before the day was over, Carolyn Sapp, Miss America 1992, was telling people, "I think I would like living here."

Miss Sapp's visit was part of an educational program sponsored by Charles Daher's Commonwealth Motors in Lawrence. Commonwealth Motors has given more than $12,000 worth of educational materials to area schools. Miss Sapp's unprecedented visit to the Greater Lawrence area was because of the extraordinary efforts of Commonwealth Motors in helping area schools acquire much needed educational material with no cost involved to either the schools or parents.

Commonwealth Motors would like to invite you to visit them at your convenience whether it be to take advantage of our state-of-the-art service departments or if you are interested in the purchase of a new or used vehicle. Commonwealth Motors services almost every make and model vehicle and offers Saturday service, express service and shuttle service if needed. Commonwealth Motors also has a full service body shop with free estimates

Audi

Long regarded as the reigning monarchs of German performance sedans, Mercedes and BMW have never had much concern about a possible dethronement. However, that was before Audi engineers unveiled their most impressive achievement to date: The all-new Audi 100.

In tests conducted by three of Germany's top automotive journals, the totally redesigned Audi 100 outscored both the Mercedes 300E 2.6 and the BMW 525i.

According to Auto Motor Und Sport, the Audi 100 took control of the testing early and often, besting Mercedes and BMW in bodywork, handling and control, and economy.

"Audi has succeeded ... in not just drawing level with the competition, but moving ahead of it."

It would seem that the eight years Audi engineers had labored over this newest of Audis had indeed paid off. As Andres Borchman, editor of Auto Build, said, "The new Audi 100 is no longer number three among the distinguished German marques, but, as the test proves, number one."

The test journalists at Mot made it unanimous: "The Audi is clearly the deserving winner."

Both on the surface and beneath the skin, the new 100 differs dramatically from its predecessors. The styling is more dynamic. The interior is roomier. And the venerable five-cylinder power plant has given way to a 172 hp V-6 engine with superior low-end torque.

One area that wasn't tested but should be mentioned is the Audi

Increase your gas mileage with fuel efficiency tips

Wouldn't you be upset if you paid for a dollar's worth of gasoline but only got 75 cents worth? That could be happening if you're not following the fuel efficiency tips in the latest, free "Answer Book" from Shell. According to Shell Oil Company, you may be able to increase gas mileage by about 25 percent by following some easy tips in The Better Mileage Book.

Modify your driving technique to travel the same distance but using less energy is called "high-efficiency" driving. Here are just a few "high-efficiency driving" tips that you'll find along with other fuel-saving car maintenance tips in The Better Mileage Book.

- Lighten your load. Remove heavy objects from your car that you don't need. A heavy load hurts gas mileage, so remove unnecessary items such as bowling balls, golf clubs or unneeded tools.

- Ease up. Gentle acceleration and braking improves gas mileage. Slowly coast into intersections, taking your foot off the accelerator. This allows your car's momentum, instead of extra gasoline, to get you to the intersection.

- Be smooth. Speeding up, slowing down and speeding up again wastes gas. It's better to inch along in traffic than to stop and go abruptly.

- Cruise. Use cruise control to maintain a steady speed. But do not use it in heavy traffic or hilly terrain; in those conditions it's less fuel efficient.

- Slow down. you move too fast. Driving at 55 miles per hour (mph) rather than 65 mph can increase gas mileage by three to five miles per gallon.

- Just skip it. The faster you get into your car's highest gear, the more efficiently it will run. If you have a five-speed, manual transmission, depending on your vehicle, you may be able to get quickly into the highest gear by skipping from first to third to fifth. For vehicles with automatic transmissions, you should not "floor it"; gentle accel-

Spring: A time for birds, flowers and a checking of your tires

The saying goes that April showers bring May flowers, but as winter departs and warmer, wetter weather arrives, you might also say that spring brings the need for some practical tire maintenance.

Because many drivers now ride on all-season tires instead of changing back and forth between winter tires, they miss a natural opportunity to have their tires inspected. But, winter is traditionally a tough season on tires. Snow, ice, and salt take their toll, therefore making springtime the most logical time to have tires inspected.

Stan Cooper, Firestone's consumer products manager, suggests that car owners inspect their tires for any debris embedded in the tread and possible cuts in the tread or sidewall. The tires should also be checked to make sure they have at least 2/32-inch tread.

If they are damaged or have too little tread, serious problems such as sudden air loss or loss of solid traction can occur.

Spring is also the busiest season for wheel alignment and other front-end maintenance work, according to the automotive service industry.

"If front tires are wearing unevenly across the tread, the car's alignment should be checked," Mr. Cooper said.

"It doesn't take many bumps through potholes to knock a car out of alignment."

He also recommends checking the inflation pressure of tires to make sure they meet the standards suggested by your vehicle's manufacturer. Variations of even one or two pounds of air pressure can shorten their service life.

For a spring scrubbing of a tire's

Mercedes S-Class redefines automotive integrity

The new Mercedes S-Class was conceived not simply as another new model, but as a redefinition of automotive integrity for the world of the '90s and beyond. A world that will impose vital challenges for high efficiency and safety and durability, for increased driver comfort and control, for greater environmental responsibility. Simply put, the new S-Class had to extend many aspects of automotive function and performance beyond existing levels.

The S-Class consists of five models:

- The 600 SEL Sedan is a 402-horsepower V-12 statement of engineering leadership.
- The 500 SEL defines the V-8 passenger car at its technological zenith.
- The 400 SE is a 4.2-liter V-8 sedan set on the standard 119.7-inch S-Class wheelbase.
- The 300 SE embodies the new S-Class concept in a superb six-cylinder engine, standard wheelbase form.
- The 300 SD is the most advanced production diesel automobile ever made.

To build the new S-Class, Mercedes improved automobile manufacturing dramatically. Many new robots joined the assembly line, pinpoint lasers are employed as metal cutters, welders and measuring tools, and electronically controlled machines make certain the S-Class body is precisely sized. Nearly the entire welding process, which includes approximately 5,800 sport welds and many feet of seam welds, is automated. Quality-control procedures have also been intensified.

Mercedes-Benz is fighting corrosion on the S-Class by using sheet steel that is electrolytically galvanized, which is 30 percent thicker than on previous S-Class cars.

Mercedes has also made the new S-Class environmentally friendly by virtually eliminating ozone-depleting chlorofluorocarbons in the car's production, and completely eliminating them from its climate-control system. Plastic parts weighing more than three and one half ounces are now identified by type on the parts themselves, simplifying recycling. Also, during 1992, S-Class exterior paint will be water-based.

The S-Class interior is extremely spacious. It may also be the most intensively sound-engineered compartment in automotive annals. Rattles, squeaks, stray airflow whispers have all been controlled.

The seat is a softer, more modern design with spring steel core for resilience, molded rubber for shape, natural fibers for good air circulation and synthetic cushioning for added comfort. Its range of adjustment is greater than any previous Mercedes-Benz seat. And the seatbelts are so comfortable that you will hardly know you are wearing them.

The S-Class offers two optional traction-control systems, which will appeal to safety-conscious drivers as well as to owners who regularly encounter poor road surfaces, snow, ice or mud.

Automatic locking differential (ASD), optional on the 300 SD, helps when starting on slippery surfaces and is active up to approximately 19 miles per hour. It limits wheelspin of wither driven wheel by locking the differential so that power is best applied to existing tracking conditions. A dashboard lamp lights when ASD is engaged.

Automatic slip control (ASR) is standard on the 600 SEL and 500 SEL and optional on the 400 SE and 300 SE. It operates up to highway speeds to increase rear-wheel adhesion when accelerating or maintaining speed. It can substantially reduce fishtailing. At low speeds, ASR immediately applies the brake to a slipping wheel and continues to do so until traction is regained.

These are just a few of the many features found in the Mercedes-Benz S-Class. To learn more, contact Smith Motor Sales at 372-2552 or visit them at 455 River St., Haverhill.

Keep windshield wipers clean

Windshield wipers accumulate road grime, dirt and dust so that eventually the blades do not come in contact with the windshield, according to International Carwash Association car-care experts. This causes the wipers to smear and obstruct the driver's vision. Car-wash owners suggest keeping wiper blades clean by wiping them off with a paper towel or dry cloth. Wiper blades should be replaced every four to six months.

Increasing your gas mileage

• Apply the 30-second rule. The worst mileage you can get is zero miles per gallon. That's what you're doing when you idle. It takes the same energy to stop and restart a vehicle as it does to idle for 30 seconds. When you're waiting at a drive-in window at a restaurant or bank or waiting for a train to pass, try to estimate how long you'll be. If it's more than 30 seconds, turn the engine off.

• Enjoy a walk. The best way to save gas is to drive less. For short trips in the neighborhood, walk or ride a bike; you'll save gas and get exercise. Carpool whenever possible. And try to combine errands to minimize trips.

The Better Mileage Book offers these tips as well as car maintenance tips for improving fuel efficiency. To get your free Shell Answer Book, visit your nearest Shell station or write to Shell Answers, Shell Oil Company, Dept. M, P.O. Box 4681, Houston, Texas 77210.

Spring: Birds, flowers, tires

whitewall or white outline letters, use a specialty tire cleaner or kitchen cleanser with a steel wool scrub pad or stiff bristle brush. Avoid using gasoline or kerosene which can damage tires.

Mr. Cooper pointed out that many of today's cars are front-wheel drive, which leads to faster tire wear on front-wheel positions than on the rear axle.

"Since most vehicles are just coming out of the rough winter driving season, owners of front-wheel-drive cars should have their tires rotated from front to rear. This will improve traction and help improve the overall wear on your tires," he said.

"If the tire treads are worn unevenly, crisscrossing them to opposite corners of the vehicle will usually help smooth out the irregularities. If the tires do not exhibit irregular wear, keep them on the same side of the car when you rotate."

So enjoy the May flowers as you take a drive on your well-kept tires.
